Bullish Operations on Market Maintained With Vigor—Call Money 9 Per Cent After Renewal at 7.

REALIZING HEAVY LATE IN SESSION

Total Sales Drop to 3,500,000 Shares—Some Prominent Issues Lower at Close.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Bullish operations on the stock market today were maintained with vigor, giving little more than passing attention to a secondary upswing in the call loan rate, which reached 9 per cent before the close. Profit taking cropped out here and there, but for the most part was well absorbed.

The forward movement was given impetus in the afternoon by a rise of more than 5 points in U. S. Steel, carrying it above the 200 mark for the first time to a record price of 211 1/2. It closed at 201 1/2, a wide assortment of steel, rail, chemical, farm implement and small order shares made substantial progress, many again reaching record high levels.

The firming of call money was regarded as a temporary development, resulting from the return of mid-year payment checks for collection and the desire of New York banks to reduce their borrowings at the Federal Reserve Bank. Call loans renewed unchanged at 7 per cent, rising successively to 8, and then to 9. Time money, however, was generally quoted at 7 1/2 per cent, unchanged from last week and bankers' acceptances were said to be in good demand at the lower rates made effective last week.

Realizing Heavy Late. There was little in the news to influence the market, but the renewed firmness of call money tended to discourage public participation, and total sales dropped to approximately 3,500,000 shares. Realizing was particularly heavy in the final sales, when gains were generally reduced a point or so, and a sprinkling of issues fell 1 to 4 points below Saturday's closing prices.

Cases Threshing was again a buoyant feature, selling up 24 points to a record price, reflecting the more optimistic agricultural outlook with the rally in grain prices. Oliver Farm Equipment had order shares mounted a few points also. The strength of United States Steel was in response to unconfirmed rumors that an extra cash or stock dividend may be declared this month, and the extraordinarily persistent demand for steel products. Michigan Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Midland Steel preferred were also strong, mounting more than 5 points.

Coppers Are Lower. Other issues to display buoyance were Vicks Chemical, Snider Packing, preferred, National Cash Register, Columbia Graphophone and Western Union, which sold up 4 to 5 points. Allied Chemical mounted 1 point to a record price of 34 1/2. Copper shares were subjected to some pressure before the close, Calumet and Arizona, Greene-Cannons and Kennecott losing from 1 to 2 points. General Electric and Eastman Kodak turned heavy in realizing, closing about 3 and near 6 points lower. International Telephone, Du Pont, and Westinghouse Electric were other prominent issues to lose ground.

In the commodity markets, wheat after sagging about 2 cents, rallied to close about 1 1/2 cents higher. Corn mounted about a cent, a bushel. Cotton was also firm, closing about $1 a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were generally higher, with conspicuous strength in sterling cables, which rallied about $4.55.

Rally in Cotton. Cotton rallied about $1 to $1.50 a bale on the reopening following the publication at noon of the Government's bureau report on indicated acreage planted. While the report showed the acreage slightly larger than a year ago, it proved distinctly less bearish than the market had anticipated on the strength of private forecasts. The market had discounted an indicated report of about 49,000,000 acres, with the Government survey indicating 48,457,000 acres in total.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on Pages 27, 28 and 29.

COMPANY ASKS COMMISSION
TO SPEED UP 10-CENT FARE

Denounces 120 Days' Delay Ordered as Confiscatory and Demands Increase as a Right.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 8.—The St. Louis Public Service Commission today filed a motion with the State Public Service Commission asking the commission to expedite action on its suspended schedule for a 10-cent street car fare. The commission July 1 suspended the new schedule of rate for 120 days pending the usual investigation and hearings.

The motion requests an early date for a preliminary hearing, at which all requests for audits or a valuation must be made. This is sought, the motion says, so the commission may order and institute them without delay, if it deems them advisable.

The motion asserted the company is entitled to the new rates under previous orders of the commission, irrespective of additions and betterments acquired or constructed since the valuation of Jan. 1, 1927. The company is suffering "irreparable injury and its properties are being confiscated daily, and it cannot be compensated under the law for failure to earn a fair return during the period of suspension," the motion says.

Wife of Man Who Struck Oil Writes, "I Can't Stand Expensive Things."

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 8.—Mrs. Claude Derring has gone back to work in a restaurant in the San Francisco Bay district and her husband, a former railroad brakeman, who now owns valuable Wyoming oil property, has obtained a divorce.

"Dear Claude," Mrs. Derring wrote in the letter Derring showed in court as proof of his wife's desertion, "you wonder why I have forsaken the luxury you gave me to return to the old restaurant life, but I can't stand expensive things. Remember you gave me a book one time and I read it. Poverty grants to those who loves the only urge of life—the boon of desire. That's me."

The Derrings were married about six years ago, before oil was found on what the railroad man's Wyoming homestead.

San Francisco Customs Authorities Examine Baggage on Trip From China.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 8.—The seven trunks belonging to Mrs. Ying Kao, seized in San Francisco by the Customs officers, were held because secret treasury agents abroad reported that they contained 3000 tins of opium valued at approximately $60,000.

Announcing this today, the Treasury said it had not received a report on what an examination of the trunks showed. It was because of the report from abroad that Customs officers seized the trunks upon the arrival in San Francisco from China of Mrs. Ying Kao, wife of a Chinese Vice Consul there.

Search of the trunks was delayed until authorities here telegraphed the San Francisco Customs officers today to search the baggage, saying that Mrs. Ying Kao had no diplomatic standing.

200,000 COPIES OF TRAFFIC LAWS BEING DISTRIBUTED
Distribution of 200,000 copies of St. Louis traffic laws, the pamphlets containing pictures of traffic signals now used here, was begun today.

The pamphlets also contain schedules of fines which can be assessed for traffic law violations. They were prepared under the direction of the Register's office.

FOUR INJURED
BY EARTHQUAKE
IN CALIFORNIA

Casualties Occur at Santa Fe Springs, Near Los Angeles, Which Also Is Severely Shaken.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 8.—Four persons, two men and two children, were injured in an earthquake which severely shook Los Angeles and communities within a 30-mile radius at 5:45 a. m. These injuries were reported from Santa Fe Springs, oil town 15 miles south of here.

Long Beach, Hermosa Beach and Santa Monica, on the Pacific Ocean, felt the tremor more than the inland communities of Pasadena and Glendale.

The tremor was an undulating north and south movement, causing chandeliers in some buildings to sway like pendulums, rattling windows and moving small objects but causing no damage here.

A second tremor of less intensity was felt an hour later at 9:45 o'clock.

At Whittier, northeast of Santa Fe Springs, several houses were damaged by falling chimneys and plate-glass windows were broken.

The Santa Fe Springs children were injured when a washing machine filled with boiling water overturned.

Two oil field workers were injured by objects falling from derricks.

The epicenter of the quake appeared to be in the Santa Fe Springs area. It was felt at Pomona, 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles, and in San Fernando Valley town to the north.

Large buildings in Los Angeles swayed several inches, the tower of the City Hall swinging back and forth 12 inches, but no damage was reported.

The City Hall is constructed so that a three-foot sway of the tower or eighteen inches in each direction, is provided for, engineers say. The 1800-pound chandelier in the rotunda swung on an arc of twelve inches during the earthquake.

Damage amounting to $50,000 was reported in East Whittier. A section of one wall of the East Whittier school caved in and the structure was thrown out of line. It was unoccupied. Two East Whittier homes were wrecked.

News Building at Long Beach Rocked by Earthquake.
LONG BEACH, Cal., July 8.—An earthquake tremor which lasted more than 20 seconds, was felt in the central part of this city at 5:47 a. m. today. It was the first severe shock ever authentically reported in this beach city.

The Press-Telegram building at Sixth street and Pine avenue was rocked for more than 15 seconds, the machines in the composing room vibrating. The Spaulding building, across the street from the newspaper office, rocked perceptibly and the tremor was felt in all big buildings in the city. No one was injured and no property damage was reported. The tremor was from north to south.

Laura Weaver, 21, Confesses Killing W. T. Kitzelman, With Whom She Lived at Wyoming, Ill.

Farmer's Daughter of Unusual Strength Tells of Taking Victim 30 Miles and Igniting Quilt.

By the Associated Press.
TOULON, Ill., July 8.—Laura Weaver, a 21-year-old woman of great size and strength, was held today for the murder of Wilmer T. Kitzelman, 52, with whom she lived.

Six feet tall and weighing 230 pounds, the young woman told of strangling Kitzelman, wrapping his body in a quilt, rolling it down stairs, loading it into an automobile and driving into the country, where she dumped it by the roadside, poured naphtha over the covering and set it afire.

Kitzelman was a big man, weighing 200 pounds. For several days after the body was found by two farm boys July 1, it remained unidentified. A brother finally made the identification through a set of false teeth.

After two hours' questioning, the woman detailed for county officers the story of her affair with Kitzelman and its ending. Her confession told of her growing disgust with Kitzelman's habit of drinking to excess.

"He came to our room over the gambling house at Wyoming, Ill., Sunday morning June 30," she confessed, as made public by officers, said. "He had been drinking. He grabbed a chair and tried to strike me with it. I got away from that. Then he took a mirror from the wall and brought it down on my head. It smashed in a thousand places and almost stunned me."

"Finally I got him on the bed and sat watching him for an hour. He got up, drank some more and fell back on the bed in a stupor."

Pulls Belt Around Neck.
"I took off his belt and punched more holes in it so I could draw it tighter. Then I pulled it around his neck until he got blue in the face. Then I hooked it."

"It was about 11:30 a. m. Sunday. Most of the folks in town were at church. I pulled the old patchwork quilt from under him and strangled him over his head. It seemed a long time that he continued moving under the quilt. Finally he was still."

"I got some fish line and tied him up, bending him so his chin rested on his knees. I rolled him off the bed and wrapped the quilt around him, like a bundle."

"I went down and drove the coupe up to the door. Then I went back. I didn't want to carry such a load down, so I rolled it down the stairs. At the foot of the stairs I picked him up and put him in the back of the coupe."

She told of driving out of town, of stopping to buy naphtha and of leaving the main road for a little-frequented byway. Her confession continued:

"I took the bundle out and threw it beside the road in some weeds. I poured naphtha over it, threw the jar away and touched a match. It was blazing hard when I drove away."

In making this announcement, the White House noted there had been no discussion of possible change in postal rates.

4700-MILE JOURNEY TO REQUIRE 50 HOURS

Coast Guard Craft Reports Monoplane Going Strong 75 Miles Out After Its Start at 6:49 A. M.

By the Associated Press.
GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 8.—Lieut. L. M. Melka, pilot of the coast guard plane accompanying the Old Orchard-to-Rome airplane, Pathfinder, reported to coast guard base No. 7 here, at 7:50 a. m. (St. Louis time) that he had last seen the plane about 75 miles off Portland Lightship and that it was "going fine." The coast guard plane then turned back and landed at the base here this afternoon.

By the Associated Press.
OLD ORCHARD, Me., July 8.—Successful in their third attempt to take off from the beach here, Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey presumably were on their way to Rome in the monoplane Pathfinder today.

There was a possibility, however, that the flight might be in the nature of a test, as Yancey told Ben Zehor, his mechanic, that if a careful check of gasoline consumption the first few hours showed they were using too much fuel, the plane would be brought back.

The plane took off in a fog at 6:49 a. m. Eastern daylight time (6:49 a. m. St. Louis time).

The flyers expected to make the 4700 miles in 45 to 50 hours. The plane took off after a run of one mile and headed due south, gaining an altitude of about 100 feet as it left the beach. The ship then made a wide swing and headed east on its course until lost to sight in the haze.

Escorted by Three Planes. Three planes accompanied the Pathfinder for a distance. The Coast Guard amphibian was on the left, a small commercial plane on the right and a large commercial amphibian close in the rear.

As the fog lifted for a moment, spectators on the beach could see the Pathfinder and its two accompanying amphibians circle, apparently in an effort to gain altitude. Aboard the commercial amphibian were 12 persons, among them Miss Thera Rasche, German flyer.

The small commercial plane returned to the beach in a few minutes. Mrs. Yancey was said to have been a passenger on this plane.

The Pathfinder seemed to be just able to hold the 100-foot altitude, as it passed out of sight. That was the "ceiling" of the machine as computed by Williams before the take-off.

Third Attempt Is Successful. It was the third time in six weeks that Williams and Yancey had tried to take off. The two other attempts, both of which were unsuccessful, were made in the Green Flash, a sister plane of the Pathfinder.

On May 29 one of the wheels on the Green Flash crumbled on the run down the beach. The rest of the plane was not damaged, and another attempt was made June 12. On that occasion one wheel struck soft sand, pulled the plane into a ground loop and smashed it almost beyond repair.

After the wreck of the Green Flash, Williams and Yancey acquired the plane, North Star, which was purchased by Mrs. James A. Sullivan a year ago for a proposed trans-Atlantic flight by the German aviator, Thera Rasche. They renamed it the Pathfinder.

On those attempts the flyers had company—the three Frenchmen, who reached Spain in the Yellow Bird after starting for Paris today.

PEACE MOVE MADE BY NEW ORLEANS COUNCIL IN STRIKE

City Commission Requests Street Car Company to Accept Proposition of Carmen's Union.

LABOR DEPARTMENT SENDS CONCILIATORS

Operators Petition U. S. Court for Injunction to Prevent Interference With Running Carriers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—The City Commission Council today requested the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., to accept the proposition of the Carmen's Union for the return to work of the striking motormen and conductors, pending negotiations over a new contract, provided the union is recognized immediately. The council's request was laid before the company's Board of Directors shortly before 1 o'clock.

The Labor Department announced in Washington today that W. H. Rodgers had been sent to New Orleans from Des Moines, Ia., and Harry B. Dines had been sent from South Bend, Ind., to act as conciliators.

New Orleans entered its sixth day without street car service, thousands riding in service cars and others with neighbors and friends.

Strikers and their sympathizers, after almost a week of rioting during which two car men were killed and property damage running upward of $50,000 was caused, apparently were ready to await developments.

They staged a parade through the business section yesterday, approaching as near the car barns as police would permit. A brick was thrown from one of the automobiles as the crowd neared the Arabelle barn.

It was around Arabelle and Canal street barns that most of the riots occurred last week, with as many as 3000 men in some of the free-for-all fights in which several street cars were demolished and burned.

The parades halted once to dig a grave and stage a mock funeral for Public Service motormen and strike-breakers. As they passed the spot on Canal street where a car was burned a band struck up a funeral dirge. Late last night a bomb was exploded in the Poland street barn, but caused little damage.

The company has indicated that no further attempts will be made to operate cars with non-union labor at present. The City Commission ordered such efforts halted Friday afternoon after riots had occurred each time a car was taken from the barns.

MRS. COREY AND PRINCE

AT SAME RESORT IN ITALY Reconciliation Reported in San Remo Social Circles and Marriage Is Expected.

GENOVA, Italy, July 8.—The premarital vicissitudes of Prince Luis de Bourbon, cousin of the King of Spain, and Lady Mabel Gilmor, divorced wife of the Pittsburgh steel operator, have taken another turn by the presence of both parties at San Remo. Following statements from both sides that the projected marriage was "all off" the Prince bought the Villa Bellevue on the Corso Victor Hugo. Mrs. Corey arrived yesterday and is staying at the Miramere Palace Hotel in the neighborhood. Most of the current rumor in San Remo social circles is that they have been reconciled and that their marriage soon will take place.

On June 26 Mrs. Corey issued a statement declaring that her engagement to Prince Luis was "absolutely finished." The Prince's disavowal of the details of the marriage settlement which the former Broadway actress was willing to make with him was understood to be behind the break in their romance. On June 12 it was learned that Mrs. Corey had agreed to provide the Prince with $1000 a month for pocket money but that he had decided he would have to have a better allowance.

Plane and Flyers on Way to Rome

LEWIS A. YANCEY AND ROGER Q. WILLIAMS. Who started this morning from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome in their plane, Pathfinder, which is shown above in a test flight.

TWO FLYERS TAKE OFF ON ANNOUNCED TRIP FROM U. S. TO ROME

They had the beach to themselves.

The flyers planned to fly almost due east to the tip of Cape Sabine, N. S., where they will head east-southeast to the junction of steamship lanes, about 1000 miles from Old Orchard.

Their course will then follow the forty-first meridian of latitude, passing 100 miles north of the Azores and reaching the mainland at Cape Ortegal, along the northern tip of Spain. They then plan to cross Bayonne, France, and head across the Mediterranean, passing over the island of Corsica.

Recalling that a Portland yacht stowed away on the Yellow Bird which took off June 12, police made a careful inspection of the interior of the Pathfinder before the takeoff, and then stayed close by the machine.

Yancey said they planned to land at an airfield about 15 miles south of Rome. "I am a working man and I am going out to do a day's work," Yancey said when newspaper men asked him for some statement just before the takeoff. Williams, as usual, would not comment.

Insignia "NX3789"

The Pathfinder, a Bellanca monoplane, powered with a Wright motor, bears the insignia "NX 3789" in black on the tail and under the left wing. The wings and tail are painted with aluminum paint and the fuselage is a light green with the name Pathfinder on both sides.

Yancey, who holds a master mariner's license and has been a navigator for 22 years, for the most part on ocean boats, said he had been asked by Dr. James H. Kimball, New York meteorologist and unofficial starter of all trans-Atlantic flights, to make readings to check certain theories.

He said he would take accurate temperature readings at regular intervals, especially in and near cloud formations.

Part of Gasoline Dumped. Harold Beedle, representative of an oil company, who was in the oil company plane which went four miles with the Pathfinder, said the plane was then at an altitude of 500 feet and was gaining more altitude slowly.

Beedle said Williams had dumped some of the 500 gallons of gasoline in the Pathfinder before the takeoff, which would reduce the possible cruising range by several hundred miles. No explanation for reducing the load was given.

Later it was said Yancey had checked the gas consumption of the motor carefully in the two weeks it had been at Scarborough airport. He said the engine had determined that it could reach its objective with 450 gallons. Reducing the load gave an added factor of safety at the takeoff.

Trans-Atlantic Winds Favorable to Pathfinder.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 8.—Dr. James H. Kimball, of the New York Weather Bureau, said today that the winds over the Atlantic were favorable to the Pathfinder. He said the plane would encounter some fog along the coast and should keep south of a dense bank until it was more than 1000 miles out. Rains and drizzles would be encountered, he said, past mid-

'UNTIN' BOWLER IS REPORTED TO HAVE TAKEN OFF

Canadian Wireless Office Receives Message From Port Burwell Indicating Hudson Bay Flight.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, July 8.—The amphibian airplane 'Untin' Bowler took the air yesterday from an undetermined point in the Hudson Bay country, continuing its flight from Chicago to Berlin.

The take-off was indicated in a message received by the Canadian Government wireless offices here from the station at Port Burwell, on the Hudson Straits. The message said:

"Port Burwell: Hum of plane's generator distinctly heard at 10:30 a. m. Faded badly at intervals and no signals heard. At 10:40 a. m. there was a complete fade-out and nothing further was heard up to the present at 11 a. m., Eastern standard time.

The 'Untin' Bowler's radio does not function when the plane is not in flight.

The plane was still in the air somewhere over the northern wastes bounding the east coast of Hudson Bay at 2:10 p. m., Eastern standard time, today.

A message from the Government radio station at Port Burwell on the Hudson Straits to the Department of Marine and Fisheries here read: "Faint sign of plane's generator heard at Cape Hopes Advance, 2:10 Eastern standard time."

The plane has sent out no signals and nothing is known of its actual whereabouts.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Chicago Tribune's Chicago-to-Berlin amphibian plane, the 'Untin' Bowler, and its crew of three were last heard from early Friday.

Operators have been constantly on duty at the Tribune's radio station in Elgin, Ill., but since 9:58 a. m. Friday no message has been received from the plane. At that time Parker D. Cramer, co-pilot and navigator, said in a radio message that the plane was landing at Great Whale, a tiny trading post on the Great White River in the Hudson Bay country.

For five hours Sunday the Elgin operators heard a loud whirring sound which they were confident was from the plane's radio generator being operated by the motor. If such were the case, backers of the flight said, it was evident that the 'Untin' Bowler flew a considerable distance.

HOOVER RETURNS TO CAPITAL

He and Wife Spent Week-End in Blue Ridge Mountains. WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Hoover returned to the White House shortly before 11 o'clock today from his fishing camp in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, where with Mrs. Hoover and a group of friends he had spent the week-end.

The presidential party made an early start from the fishing camp and arrived in Criglersville, a small village at the foot of the mountains, a little before 8 o'clock. There it divided. Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Vernon Kellogg and Herbert Hoover Jr., returned to Washington in one of the President's private cars, at some distance behind the rest of the party. Mrs. Hoover was with the wheel.

Members of the party in camp, including Mrs. Hoover, went horseback riding, choosing a trail which led over one of the highest parts of the Blue Ridge. The party also hunted itself for a time in constructing crude rock dams at various places along the stream, to form fishing pools for next year's sport. In this they were joined for a time by the President.

Weather reports for today indicated very unfavorable weather over the Ungava and Labrador peninsulas and between the mainland and Greenland.

Two Hudson Bay Trading Co. posts are in the desolate Ungava region, across which the plane must fly on its way to Cape Chidley, and Tribune officials thought it possible that the plane was forced down near one of them.

The 'Untin' Bowler left here Wednesday morning on what was to have been a five-day flight to Berlin to chart a new commercial airline to Europe.

Besides Cramer, the crew consisted of Robert Gast, pilot, and Robert Wood, aviation editor of the Tribune.

FIFTH BANK CLOSED NEAR BIRMINGHAM IN TWO WEEKS

Citizens Called on to "Stop Wave of Hysteria That Has Threatened City."

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 8.—The Leeds (Ala.) State Bank failed to open its doors today. Officers announced that the affairs of the depository had been placed in the hands of the State banking department following a heavy run on Saturday. The Leeds bank is the fifth to close in the Birmingham district within the last two weeks. B. C. Lindon is president of the bank, capitalized at $25,000 with a surplus of a similar amount.

Search continued for the body of Dr. A. W. Bell, president of the Woodlawn Savings Bank, who was reported to have been drowned Saturday morning.

Citizens were called on by banking leaders, the president of the City Commission and in newspaper editorials to "quit worrying about the banks and to stop a wave of hysteria that has threatened the city since the closing of four suburban banks."

Residents near Vincent, Ala., where Dr. Bell was reported to have been drowned, dragged the Coosa River last night but found no trace of the body. The report of the drowning said Dr. Bell apparently was seized with cramps and carried down by the swift current.

J. B. Lassiter, president of the City Bank and Trust Co., and the Avondale Savings Bank, continued ill in a New York hospital where he has been since he collapsed when his two banks were closed. John R. Wallace, cashier of the Avondale bank, died the day before that bank closed from a pistol wound said to have been accidental. Coroner J. D. Russum returned a verdict of accidental death.

The plane has sent out no signals and nothing is known of its actual whereabouts.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Chicago Tribune's Chicago-to-Berlin amphibian plane, the 'Untin' Bowler, and its crew of three were last heard from early Friday.

Operators have been constantly on duty at the Tribune's radio station in Elgin, Ill., but since 9:58 a. m. Friday no message has been received from the plane. At that time Parker D. Cramer, co-pilot and navigator, said in a radio message that the plane was landing at Great Whale, a tiny trading post on the Great White River in the Hudson Bay country.

For five hours Sunday the Elgin operators heard a loud whirring sound which they were confident was from the plane's radio generator being operated by the motor. If such were the case, backers of the flight said, it was evident that the 'Untin' Bowler flew a considerable distance.

Probably Forced Down. Fears were expressed yesterday that the amphibian had been forced down in the wooded wilds of Northern Quebec by storms which are reported to have crossed its path, but Tribune officials denied reports from Cleveland that another amphibian plane had been rented there to search for the 'Untin' Bowler. They were confident, they said, that the 'Untin' Bowler had met with no accident, but had probably been kept to the ground by unfavorable weather.

It was at first supposed that the 'Untin' Bowler had flown yesterday from Great Whale to Port Burwell on Cape Chidley, Labrador, the last stopping place before the take-off for Greenland.

The radio station at Mount Evans, Greenland, told the Tribune early today, however, that it had established communication with Port Burwell at 7 p. m. Sunday and that the amphibian had not arrived there.

Two Hudson Bay Trading Co. posts are in the desolate Ungava region, across which the plane must fly on its way to Cape Chidley, and Tribune officials thought it possible that the plane was forced down near one of them.

soared into the skies promptly at 8:15 a. m. and the other plane followed a few minutes later.

In Washington, Secretary of Commerce Lamont pressed a button in his office, a gong sounded at the airport here, an official waved his hands and the "City of Columbus" took off for Indianapolis. Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer and assistant general traffic manager of the T. A. T., was one of the passengers in the first plane.

Between 5000 and 6000 persons craved a drizzle to witness the transfer and dedication of Port Columbus, the new municipal airport.

The flight from here to Waynoka, Ok., of the two ships marked the first time in the history of aviation that train and plane have been linked in regular transcontinental service. The transfer of passengers was effected quickly. The "Airway Limited" of the Pennsylvania came into the station at Port Columbus, the passengers for the West coast alighted and walked to the T. A. T. hangar, where two planes awaited them.

T. B. Clement, general traffic manager of the T. A. T., was host at a breakfast at the company's hangar. Among the guests were Henry and Edsel Ford, David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in charge of aeronautics; Gen. Dennis E. F. Nolan, commander of the Fifth Corps area, United States Army; Maj. Clarence D. Young, assistant director of aeronautics of the United States Department of Commerce, and Elisha Lee, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, took part in the ceremonies.

Passengers in the "City of Columbus" besides Miss Earhart were: Betty Brainerd, New York newspaper woman; V. Grant Brador, New York; Col. Edgar S. Gorrill, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. F. C. Kenny; Albert A. Galtwaite, New York; F. W. Higgins, Boston; Col. Paul T. Henderson, T. A. T. official; Paul T. Henderson Jr., Washington; Daniel M. Sheaffer, Pennsylvania Railroad official, and J. W. Brennan, T. A. T. officer of St. Louis.

Passengers in the "City of Wichita" were: William Chaplin, Associated Press, New York; Mrs. John T. Litch, Byfield, Mass.; Miss M. A. Salamon; Mrs. G. P. Putnam, New York; E. E. Briener, Springfield, O.; James Bryant, New York, and four representatives of a talking moving picture company.

Rescue Arthur Baranowski From Water.

Arthur Baranowski, 13 years old, 6902 Pennsylvania avenue, was drowned yesterday while wading in a quarry pond at Reilly avenue and Stein street.

Baranowski went to the quarry with John Jesonowski, 13, and the latter's brother, William, 14, 1102 Minnesota avenue. Remarking his shoes and stockings, he waded into the pond and was plunged into 10 feet of water. John Jesonowski removed his clothing and attempted to rescue his friend while William ran to the home of George Lewandowski at the foot of Stein street. Lewandowski succeeded in recovering the body 10 minutes later. Firemen were summoned and attempted to revive the boy by means of an inhalator. Baranowski was pronounced dead at City Hospital later and the body removed to the morgue. An inquest will be held.

The quarry is owned by the Liberty Foundry and is being filled in.

1500 AT BARRACKS ON OPENING DAY OF TRAINING CAMP

Student Soldiers From Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois Enroll—Some There for Third Year.

MANY CHANGES
SINCE 1928 ASSEMBLY

Ground Exclusively for Detachment Has Been Equipped With Army Tents Along Seven Streets

Fifteen hundred youths from Missouri, Arkansas and Southern Illinois gathered today at Jefferson Barracks for a month of military training and supervised athletics as members of the annual Citizens' Military Training Camp for this area.

The first day was devoted entirely to "dressing in." The young men, all between 17 and 24 years of age, were marched single-file through a group of tents and buildings where the transition from civilian to "troop" took place.

Tomorrow afternoon the student soldiers will get their first taste of military life when they will assemble on the post's parade grounds to take a 30-day oath of allegiance.

Many changes in the camp were made for a second or third year of training. The facilities provided for them. An entirely new encampment, to be used exclusively by the C. M. T. C., has been prepared southwest of the parade ground where an area has been graded and set out with army tents along seven company streets. Concrete bath houses have been erected in the area. Each of the tents, fitted for six student soldiers, is equipped with electric lights and a wooden floor.

Officers of the barracks under the command of Brigadier General G. H. Exter, post commandant, had no time for military tactics, being busy enough with the "dressing in" process. After the student soldiers had gone through this routine, they were permitted to do as they pleased, getting accustomed to army clothes and their new camp quarters.

March to Mess Hall. The first military formation will be at 5:45 this afternoon, when the students will be called into ranks and marched in military fashion to the mess hall. Tomorrow's ceremonies will get the month's business under way and Wednesday the routine of drill will begin. Mornings will be devoted entirely to military drill and the afternoons to athletics and recreation.

As in the past, baseball and basketball teams will be organized; boxing, wrestling and tennis tournaments, a track and field meet and a swimming meet will be held. Recreation will include dances at the post, visits to major league baseball games in St. Louis, amateur theatricals, and various entertainments at the Chaplain's tent, the Red Cross headquarters and other centers at the camp.

The new tent encampment has been named "Camp Skinner" in honor of Capt. Alexander Rives Skinner of St. Louis, who was killed in the battle of the Argonne. The company streets have been named after other men of this area who died in action in the World War.

Free of Cost to Students. The camp, as usual, will be conducted at no cost to the students. Railroad fare from their homes to the barracks is paid by the Government and meals are provided at the regular mess halls. As part of the health program, fresh milk will be served at intervals during the training periods each day.

About 200 youths who arrived at the camp last night, 12 hours ahead of time, received a cold but liberal meal of boiled ham, potato salad, pickles and iced tea, and were assigned to sleeping quarters in "Camp Skinner."

Rockefeller Cuts His Birthday Cake

J. D. ROCKEFELLER, SR. KEEPS 90TH BIRTHDAY

Golf, Distribution of Dimes and a Cake Make Up Day's Program.

By the Associated Press. TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary today.

The day brought little deviation from the daily routine by which the veteran oil magnate has learned to be healthy and happy.

Entering his ninety-first year, Mr. Rockefeller is the dean of world figures. Thomas A. Edison and President von Hindenburg of Germany are 82. George Haven Putnam, the publisher, is 85. Georges Clemenceau is 87.

The day marks the close of the third decade since, having amassed $1,000,000,000, Rockefeller relinquished his business interests to his son and began his pursuit of health and happiness.

In those 30 years he has evolved a philosophy of life based on moderation and quiet activity so that where at 60 he was a semi-invalid, he today is a man who would agree with him, today he announced that he was in perfect health, scanning the future with cheer and hope.

In a statement he said: "I have every reason to be grateful on my ninetieth birthday. Everybody has been so kind and good to me all the year. With perfect health and full of hope and cheer for the future, I have nothing but kindness and good will for everybody."

His birthday was spent with members of his family, three generations of them at his estate, Pocantico Hills.

Rockefeller arises at 7 a. m. He goes down to breakfast at 8, his pockets jingling with the day's supply of shiny new dimes and nickels.

After breakfast there is a game of numerics in which he finds relaxation after every meal. An hour going over business matters with his secretary follows. Then there are nine holes of golf with a neighbor or guest. His game usually is somewhere in the forties.

There are many anecdotes of his golfing. "I never knew a golfer to have a bad character," he once remarked.

A party once referred to a popular play, "said Rockefeller, 'but I have had a long run.'"

The dinner planned for his birthday was a quiet meal with only members of the family present to share the birthday cake.

The benefactions financed from the Rockefeller fortune, and administered by others, are estimated at $750,000,000. They are mainly devoted to the conquest of disease and improvement of living conditions, the medium being the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. The father of John Davidson Rockefeller was an itinerant country doctor.

Guesses at Rockefeller's wealth when he retired ranged from a billion dollars up. When he handed over the bulk of his estate to John D. Rockefeller Jr., he became no wealthier than a number of other men. Since then he has joked occasionally about his retirement. In hinting that he must transact some business he referred once with a twinkle to "my shattered fortunes."

On another occasion a friend was praising his new car. "Yes," said Rockefeller, "I have a good son. He gave it to me."

Rockefeller once explained when he retired from business after amassing a colossal fortune: "Heaven help the rich man who does not regard his wealth as a trust for mankind. For that man and his children there is no peace."

BODY OF CLIMBER FOUND IN BLOCK OF ICE ON MT. RAINIER

Ranger Is Lowered Into Crevasse Into Which Forest Greathouse Fell Last Tuesday.

By the Associated Press. PARADISE INN, Rainier National Park, Wash., July 8.—The body of Forest Greathouse of Seattle, found standing upright in a block of ice, was chopped out of a crevasse on Ingraham Glacier, Mount Rainier, yesterday, where it had been since last Tuesday when Greathouse and five others fell into the ice crack, two being killed.

A party of 11 guides, rangers and mountaineers found the body. Charles Brown of Tacoma, park ranger, was lowered down the crevasse on a line held by the other members of the party perched on a ledge of 100 feet below the opening of the pit.

Brown said Greathouse had apparently frozen to death without regaining consciousness. One leg was broken and one arm thrown up to protect the head.

The party left the inn Saturday afternoon and soon was lost in the clouds. It reached Camp Muir, 10,000 feet above sea level, at 6 p. m. and yesterday continued the ascent in clear but piercing cold weather.

Latter Arrested at Home, Other Is Not Held; June Goldrick Seriously Hurt.

June, 14-year-old daughter of Andrew Goldrick, 7375 Delmar boulevard, suffered a fracture of both shoulders and hips and internal injuries yesterday when struck by two automobiles in front of 4233 Shenandoah avenue. The cars were traveling in the same direction.

John C. Welder, 4265 Botanical avenue, driver of the first car, did not stop and was arrested at his home charged with leaving the scene of an accident and careless driving.

James Hamilton, 4052 Shenandoah, driver of the car behind, told police that he carried in the child to St. Louis Children's Hospital. He was arrested, but released when Goldrick told police his part in the accident was unavoidable.

Byrd Party Observes 4th With 'Antarctic Follies'

Show Given in Mess Hall After Turkey Dinner, While Thermometer Outside Registers 60 Below Zero.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York Times Co. and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.) This story is published exclusively in the Post-Dispatch. All news articles from members of the Byrd party of from special correspondents assigned to it will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 5 (Delayed).—The Fourth of July this year was celebrated farther south than ever before and with a temperature of 60 below zero.

Not only was it probably the first Fourth ever celebrated on the Antarctic continent, but it was certainly one of the merriest parties ever held in this dreary place. Even though it was dark outside, who would not be merry with a turkey dinner and a performance of the "Antarctic Follies," a show containing some unique chorus girls and jokes associated with our personal follies?

There never was a better dinner anywhere, and although turkey is not usually a Fourth of July dish back home, it was appropriate enough in the kitchen of the mess hall. And there were dressing and asparagus, mashed potatoes and cranberry sauce, not to speak of plum pudding and mince pie and ice cream.

Every one of it must be at home for us to be eating ice cream, it is considered a great delicacy. Yesterday it was served on the pie but on other occasions fruit is served with it; logan berries and ice cream make the finest dessert in the world. The ice cream is made by mixing, putting it out in the snow and stirring it a while. It does not take long.

After dinner the mess hall was cleaned up and a stage made at one end by stringing a curtain across it. The audience sat on the mess hall benches, the bunks and other's shoulders.

There was a little vaudeville, a burlesque on acts some which were wonderfully well done, and the Follies, which was a cross between a minstrel show and a musical comedy if such a thing can be imagined. But it gave opportunities for poking fun at everyone with any tendencies which lent themselves to caricature. After the Follies there was the best burlesque on boxing ever seen in the world and we are still laughing about it. Altogether, it was a highly successful Fourth of July. Even Biggie, Commander Byrd's dog, had a good time.

Today the weather has changed again and with a wind of 50 miles an hour, which roared in every ventilator and stove pipe and drove a thick drift, which made movement outside dangerous, the thermometer rapidly to 8 below zero. But as the wind was from the southwest the temperature will probably go down just as rapidly as it rose as soon as the wind decreases.

prove transmission. Four amplifying stations at 50-mile intervals will be erected at a cost exceeding $1,000,000.

The underground line will be ready about Jan. 1, 1931. It will provide quick connections to Kansas City and Central Missouri towns.

JUDGE DENOUNCES ENTRAPMENT

Fines Dry Violator $1 and Returns His Car.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 8.—Denouncing entrapment methods of prohibition enforcement, Federal Judge Slick today fined a violator $1 without costs and ordered a confiscated automobile returned to him.

The violator, Walter Schultz, of Fort Wayne, Ind., pleaded guilty. Judge Slick lectured the prohibition agents who arrested him and condemned the tactics of agents and informers, "paid or otherwise," who solicit persons to violate the liquor laws.

BARS PROPOSED DOG TRACK NEAR DUPO

Sheriff Declares Sellers of Stock Misrepresent Attitude of Authorities.

Sheriff Charles Ahrens of St. Clair County, Ill., announced today that a dog racing track would not be permitted in the county, contrary to representations which he said were being made by stock salesmen, for a proposed track near the town of Dupu, which is having a modest oil boom.

"I have received numerous inquiries from persons who wanted to know if I thought it wise for them to invest in the dog track," the Sheriff told a Post-Dispatch reporter at East St. Louis.

"I was informed that agents selling stock in the enterprise told prospects that the Sheriff and State's Attorney would permit it to operate, and that even if the authorities went through the motion of interfering, an injunction would be obtained against them."

"As long as I am Sheriff, there will be no dog track in St. Clair County. I do not think the people of the county want such a place."

Sheriff Ahrens said he had conferred with State's Attorney Hilmar Lindauer, who assured him a track would not be tolerated.

In painting a roseate picture for prospective buyers, the Dupu stock salesmen are said to have pointed to the Madison Kennel Club plant in Madison County, near Collinsville, which continues to operate profitably and without official interference, long after three tracks in St. Louis County closed. The site for the proposed new track is just southeast of Dupu, adjoining State Highway No. 2.

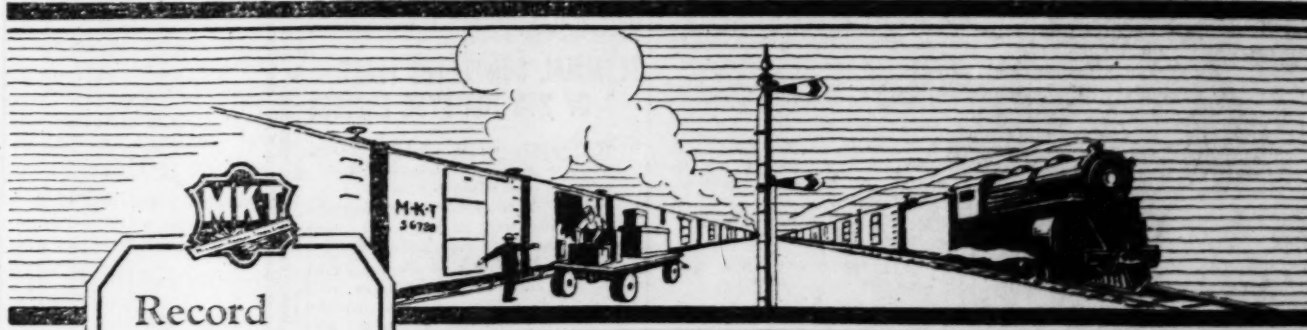

GIRL, 17, SETS RECORD FOR STATUE OF LIBERTY SWIM

Lillian Garrick Dives in Water at Battery, Makes Distance in 50 Minutes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, July 8.—Lillian Garrick, 17-year-old high-school girl, yesterday broke the record for the swim from the Battery to the Statue of Liberty. Wearing goggles to protect her eyes from the blinding sun, she plunged into the sea and was followed by three men swimmers. Her father, Jack Garrick, rode beside her in a police launch. Sergt. William Randolph, commander of the launch, was timekeeper. The record is unofficial.

The girl made the distance in 50 minutes, lowering the previous record by five.

THE KATY IS YOUR RAILROAD

Record Katy Year

In 1928 the Katy handled a larger volume of freight traffic than was handled in any previous year in the railroad's history, thus indicating the railroad's increasing usefulness to the growing Southwest. Measured in tons moved and tons moved one mile, the Katy's freight traffic volume in the first half of 1929 has exceeded the first half of 1928.

The Katy Serves

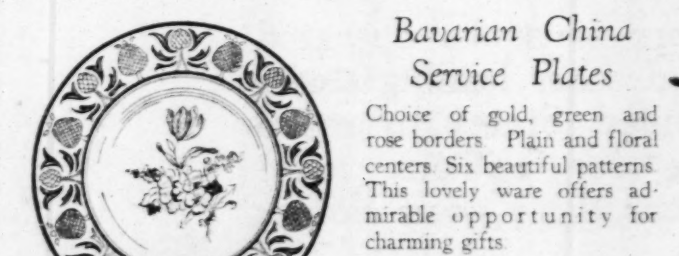

Pioneer railroad in its territory—the Katy throughout its history has occupied a distinctive relationship to the Southwest. Although constructed as a private project, the Katy was conceived in a public purpose, and its importance as a Southwestern service institution has advanced steadily.

Recognizing the necessity for a railroad from the North to Texas and the Mexican border, Congress at the close of the Civil War offered a large land grant to the first railroad constructed across Indian Territory to Texas. The Katy was certified by President Grant as winner of a spectacular race in railroad construction rich in pioneer romance and thrill.

Though finally denied in the courts the promised land grant reward to which its enterprise gave it just claim, the Katy has uniformly met the obligations of public service imposed by conditions under which its construction was undertaken.

Pioneer hope of public advantage to result from its completion as an artery of commerce have been fully realized, and a Southwestern empire has grown up along the Katy. First railroad in its distinctive field—the only railroad serving all the more important centers in Oklahoma and Texas through both St. Louis and Kansas City—the Katy purposes to serve in steadily increasing degree the continued development of the Southwest.

TWO NOVICES KILLED STUNTING IN AIRPLANE

Both Victims in Los Angeles
Crash Unlicensed and in Obsolete Craft.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 8.—Two young men, stunting in an obsolete type biplane, were killed in the fall of the craft on the outskirts of the city yesterday. They were identified as Gust Swanson, 24 years old, and Ellis Carlson, 26, both of Los Angeles.

Officials of the Mines Field declared that neither of the men was a licensed pilot, while motorists reported to Sheriff's investigators that the fall followed a tailspin, which culminated 20 minutes of spectacular stunting and two previous tailspins.

Swanson, who was taking flying lessons from Carlson, was at the controls. He leaped from the flying craft at about 200 feet from the ground, while his companion rode the ship to earth. Swanson's mangled body was found near the wreckage.

Two Killed When Plane Falls 200 Feet in Connecticut.

By the Associated Press.

NEW PRESTON, Conn., July 8.—Two airmen were killed yesterday when their airplane went into a nose spin about 200 feet above the airport at Lake Waramaug, here. The dead, Martin F. Brown, 34 years old, of New Brunswick, N. J.; Gordon Spencer Whitley, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Whitley, Arlington, N. J.

Brown was a brother-in-law of young Whitley. They came here from the Metropolitan Airport, Newark, N. J., to visit relatives at Lake Waramaug, a summer resort.

Phillip N. Whitley, another son of the Whitleys, and a witness to the crash, said both men were experienced pilots, but he did not know who was at the controls when the accident occurred.

French Officer Killed on Seville-Paris Flight.

(Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, July 8.—A French officer, Capt. Coudouret, flying a big plane, the France, in which he planned to attempt a flight across the Atlantic, crashed near Angoulême yesterday in a flight from Seville to Paris and was killed. Two Spaniards accompanying him on the flight, Colonel de la Cruz and Francisco Durban, were seriously injured.

Engine trouble developed an hour after Coudouret had passed over Angoulême, and he decided to land. As he came down, the machine struck a tree and overturned. The pilot died on the way to a hospital.

The French ministry recently forbade Capt. Coudouret to undertake his projected trans-Atlantic flight in the France.

TERMINAL COMPLETES FIRST OF 218-TON TYPE ENGINES

Four Others, Each 70-Foot Long, to Be Built for Switching Purpose.

The first of five super-switch-engines for use in its local yard service has been completed by the Terminal Railroad at its shops in East St. Louis. The others will be ready in a few months. In the last three years the Terminal has built 19 other switch engines. It uses 200 locomotives.

The newest locomotive, No. 326, is the largest of its kind in this part of the country, capable of hauling 150 loaded freight cars. It has the latest devices for power and efficiency. Due to the fact that steel sheets were welded into a whole instead of riveted, the fuel and water capacity of the tender was made large, reducing the loss of time to replenish the supplies to a minimum. Thirteen and a half tons of coal and 10,000 gallons of water can be carried.

Loaded, the locomotive and tender weigh 435,715 pounds. There are eight driving wheels, each 52 inches in diameter, and no pony trucks on the locomotive. The wheelbase of the driver is 15 feet. The extreme height above the rails, to the top of the stack, is 15 feet. The length over all is a little less than 70 feet.

RAILROAD TOWER MAN SAVES BOY FROM CAHOKIA CREEK

Finis K. Moore, 21, Dashes From Post and Plunges Into Swift Stream Fully Clothed.

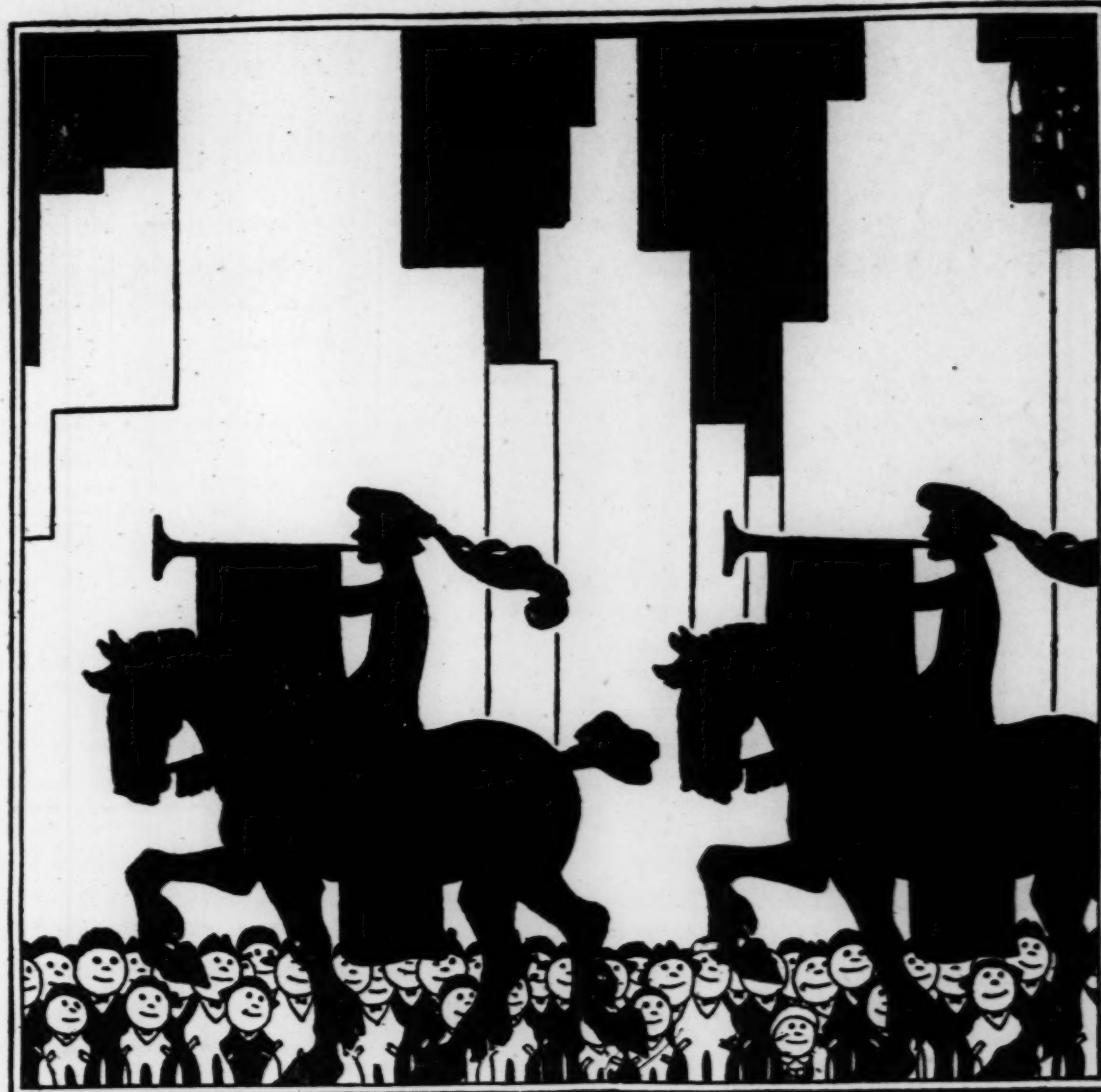

A small boy fishing for crawfish on the west bank of Cahokia Creek yesterday afternoon was seen to lose his balance and fall into the deep and swiftly moving stream by Finis K. Moore, 21 years old, who sat at a telegraph key in the relay station tower of the Terminal Railroad Association on the east bank.

Leaving his post, he ran to the swollen creek and, fully clothed, struck out for the point 150 feet downstream. The boy had disappeared but brushed against Moore as he was carried by the swift current. Seizing him by the hair, Moore carried him to shore, unconscious. He was resuscitated by artificial respiration.

The boy gave his name as Albert White, 7 years old, 517 State street, East St. Louis. Moore resides at 2100 North Grand boulevard.

103 INJURED IN PANIC AT BALL PARK FIRE

Grand Stand on Detroit Diamond Burns—Most of Those Hurt Are Negroes.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 8.—One hundred and three persons, mostly Negroes, were injured, four seriously, in a panic that followed a fire under the main grand stand at Mack Park, semiprofessional baseball park, yesterday.

A cry of "fire" started the panic and in the rush to get out many men, women and children were trampled while others were hurt in jumping over the fence into the street. Others were pushed over the fence.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Park officials denied any gasoline had been placed under the 15-year-old wooden stands. Preparations had been made to sprinkle a small amount of gasoline on the diamond and ignite it to dry it out for a game between the Detroit Stars and the Kansas City Monarchs, Negro baseball teams. A sudden shower interrupted the plans.

The stand was immediately behind the home plate and was separated from the field by a wire screen. That more were not injured was due to the presence of mind of players of both teams in tearing loose the screen. Many of the 1500 persons in the stand were pulled over onto the field to safety. Several of those injured insisted an explosion preceded the fire.

TWO FRENCHMEN FROZEN TO DEATH ON MONT BLANC

Army Captain and Architect Caught in Snowstorm When a Few Feet From Summit.

By the Associated Press.
CHAMONIX-MONT BLANC, France, July 8.—Caught in a terrific hurricane and blinding snowstorm within a few steps of the very top of Mont Blanc peak, at an altitude of 15,000 feet, Capt. Emile Jarrier of the French army and Maurice Fontin, an architect, were frozen to death during the night of Saturday to Sunday.

Both men died in the arms of Georges Couttet, an Alpine guide, who, disheveled and still terror-stricken, reached a village this morning and sent out a call for rescue parties to recover the bodies. Couttet said the amateur Alpinists grew tired and their lungs were unable to withstand the violence of the gale, which at times threatened to blow the party clear off the mountain. They stretched themselves flat on the snow and soon expired.

RAILROAD METHODS
UPSET BY FORD LINE

Experts' Advice Unheeded in Operation of Detroit, Toledo and Ironton.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 8.—When Henry Ford sold the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad he disposed of a property he had taken virtually from the junk heap and converted into a paying proposition. For the 30 years before Ford acquired it in 1920, the road often had been in receivership.

The success that attended Ford's entry into the railroad field paralleled, in a smaller way, his accomplishments in the automobile business. In the case of the automobile interests he started with $28,000 in 1903. Some twenty odd years later he was reported to have refused $1,000,000,000 for his property.

With the railroad property Ford started in 1920 with $5,000,000. Six years later the Interstate Commerce Commission placed a tentative valuation of $11,825,300 on the property and Ford himself put a value, saying that for rate-making purposes a "fair return" was $23,061,208.

From the railroad Ford obtained large profits by a procedure that was contrary to all economic logic. The profits came not because Ford instituted economies, but because he increased expenditures for maintenance of way and for equipment and because he paid railroad employees the same scale of wages he had instituted in his factories.

The road, under Ford ownership, was a thorn in the side of the railroads of the country generally; first because of the $6 a day minimum wage and, latterly, on account of the electrification of a large part of the right-of-way, which Ford instituted contrary to the advice of most railroad engineers.

The importance of the road to the Ford interests was that it crossed nearly all the larger east and west trunk lines between Detroit and the Ohio River. Ford was able to cut from two to three weeks from the time normally consumed in shipping raw materials to the Detroit plants. Moreover, the road assured the Ford interests an uninterrupted supply of coal from Southern Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Ford efficiency methods were put into operation all along the line. Employees received higher wages, but they did work that railroad employees normally left to others. Engine crews carried a repair kit and made many minor repairs that kept the locomotives out of the shops. Crossing watchmen were expected to keep crossings clean and in repair without calling in a carpenter. As far as possible Sunday work was eliminated.

When Ford purchased the road its mileage was 468, the main line extending from Detroit to Ironton, O. Spurs and additions during the Ford operation brought the mileage to 529.

Much of the financial success of D. T. & I. under Ford ownership was due to the fact that it got business in exchange from other roads to which Ford interests awarded contracts for hauling their freight after it once left the D. T. & I.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP
PROSECUTOR CHARGED
Two Men Arrested in New York
When One Asks Assistant
Attorney to Ride.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 8.—An alleged attempt to kidnap Assistant District Attorney Robert Morgan McGauley of the Homicide Bureau, was disclosed yesterday with the arraignment in Harlem Court of Frank Pamplie, alias John Harris, 32, on a charge of suspicion.

Pamplie was held by Magistrate Edward J. Walsh in $1000 bail for a hearing tomorrow. He was arraigned on a short affidavit sworn to by Detective Patrick J. Duggan, who evaded several attempts to question him about the case. The Assistant District Attorney was not in court.

The complaint charged that Pamplie went to McGauley's private law office in Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon and asked the Assistant District Attorney to accompany him in an automobile to North White Plains to see a prospective client about a divorce case. McGauley, whose suspicions were aroused because he had not heard the client's name before, stepped into another room and telephoned the police. Detective Duggan was sent to the office and arrested Pamplie.

IRISH EMANCIPATION WEEK
100,000 Catholics Attend Open-Air Mass at Cobb.
By the Associated Press.
COBB, Irish Free State, July 8.—One hundred thousand persons attended an open-air pontifical high mass yesterday which marked the beginning of Catholic emancipation week. People from all parts of Southern Ireland poured into the city until the hills surrounding the place of celebration, forming a natural amphitheater, were jammed.
Many were overcome by heat. A large staff of Red Cross workers was kept constantly busy.

CALL OF PAPAL LEGATE ON HOOVER ONE OF COURTESY

This Is Explanation Made by State Department, Which Asserts Visit Had No Significance.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 8.—The announcement by the State Department that no diplomatic significance is attached to the call upon President Hoover last week by Mgr. Piumasani Biondi, Apostolic Delegate in the United States, is interpreted in diplomatic circles as a move to end speculation over the question of formal relations between the United States and the Vatican.

After asserting that "the call has absolutely no political significance," the statement issued by the department explained that "the papal delegate, who has been absent since the inauguration, made the usual call to pay his usual respects to the incoming President, as has been the case for many administrations past."
The statement added: "The appointment was made in the routine way by the President's secretary and very properly without consultation with the President or the State Department and was merely a matter of the usual courtesy."
It is clear that the Washington Government is now "aware of the existence" of the Vatican State in view of the presentation to the President by Mgr. Biondi of a copy of the Lateran treaty in which Italy recognized its sovereignty. At the same time, the Department's announcement added weight to the impression that the administration had no intention of sending a diplomatic representative to the Vatican.

STOLEN AUTO RECOVERED BY BOULEVARD STOP ARREST

Maplewood Police Find Youth Had Machine Changed From Coupe to Roadster.

The arrest of Harvey E. Huber, 17 years old, 4805A Easton avenue, who was detained by Maplewood police after he had passed a boulevard stop in Maplewood yesterday, led to the recovery of a stolen automobile, the coupe body of which had been traded for that of a roadster.
Tracing the motor number, Maplewood police found that it corresponded with that of a coupe stolen from Alois Stetina, 1559 South Broadway, when he parked it in Forest Park July 2. Huber admitted having the body changed after taking the machine, police said.

CHICAGO PASTOR CONDEMNS BISHOP CANNON'S SPECULATION

The Rev. John Thompson of Methodist Temple Says He Has Brought Reproach on Dry Cause.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, July 8.—The Rev. John Thompson, pastor of Chicago's largest Methodist church—the Chicago Temple—in a sermon last night criticized Bishop James Cannon Jr. for his stock market speculation.

"Bishop Cannon has brought reproach on the Church of Christ; and the cause so dear to him and to all lovers of temperance and prohibition," the Rev. Mr. Thompson said. "He has given the enemy a good chance to scoff at all of us. The church of which he is the Bishop cannot afford to ignore this."

"The Bishop's speculation raised the whole question of the 'Jesus' way of life and the New Testament standards should be taken as seriously in relation to money matters as to prohibition."

LAMBERT FIELD SPECTATORS

SEE 'DEAD STICK' LANDINGS
Two Pilots Bring Planes Down Safely With Motors Cut Off.

A stunt flying program at Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday afternoon was witnessed by several thousand persons.

Features of the program were "dead stick" landings by George Lea Lambert, vice president of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. and Elmer Lindenberg, pilot for the company. Both pilots brought their planes safely to earth with the engines shut off.

Milford Sater, chief instructor for the Universal School, led a group of stunt flyers and Robert Grubb, a flying student, made a parachute jump. The exhibition was arranged by Acting Field Manager Parks.

"University of Humanity" Opens

by the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 8.—The William Booth Memorial Training College was opened by the Salvation Army at Denmark Hill today. "The University of Humanity" the steam of Gen. William Booth, founder of the army, was made a reality when Prince George opened the building with a golden key and unveiled statues of Gen. Booth and his wife, Catherine Booth. The total cost of the memorial was $271,000 (about $1,855,000).

"CHOCOLATE SOLDIER" PLAYED TO 42,000

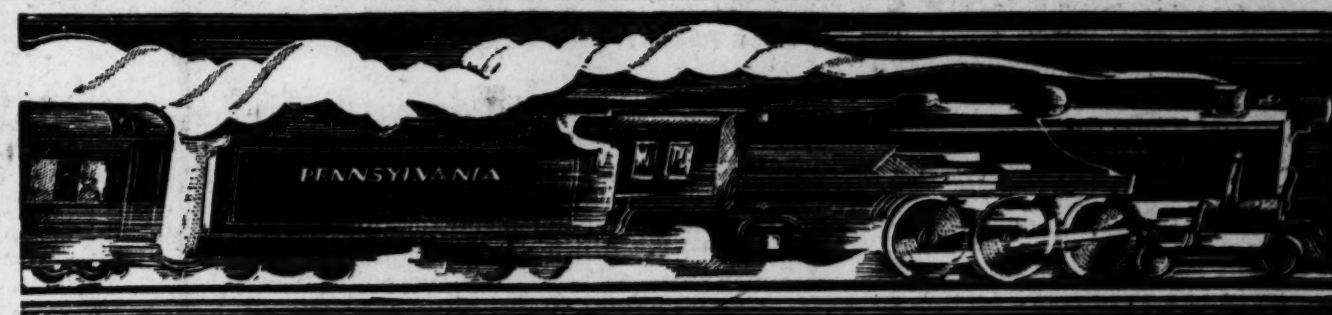

"The Bohemian Girl" Is Offering for Sixth Week of Municipal Opera Season.

The seven performances of "The Chocolate Soldier" last week at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park had a total attendance of more than 42,000, it was announced today.

Inasmuch as the week included the Fourth of July holiday, with many persons away from the city, and the weather was threatening on Friday and Saturday, the management feels that the light opera demonstrated unusual drawing power. The advance sale for the week was large.

For the sixth week of the season, starting tonight, the Municipal Theater Association will revive the comic opera, "The Bohemian Girl," which has been produced twice before in Forest Park. The piece has music by William Mich. Balfe and was first produced 86 years ago.

The part of Arline will be sung by Miss Eva Clark. Roy Cropper, Pierre White, William C. Gordon, Truman Stanley and Grace Yeager also are in the cast.

STRENGTH IN DOUBLES GIVES U. S. SOME HOPE FOR DAVIS CUP PLAY

VAN RYN-ALLISON TEAM'S VICTORY AT WIMBLEDON SHOWS CLASS

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 8.—It was the hand of fate that traced a message of doom to Nebuchadnezzar when the feast was at its height and today it raised an admonitory foreboding as a warning to France, gored with most of the honors within the gift of international lawn tennis, that the inevitable famine is in the offing. The warning was issued not on the soil of France, to be divorced from the Davis cup at a comparatively early date, or on that of America, the land to which the trophy must ultimately return. It was issued on the neutral site of Wimbledon where on Saturday Wilmer Allison, the Texan, and Johnny Van Ryn of New York gained America's first major victory of recent years in international doubles.

Probably it would be asking the unreasonable to expect the American team of 1929 to lift the famous graal from what many Americans regard as the unhalloved ground it now occupies. Tilden was the only American to reach the Wimbledon semifinals in the singles and he was beaten by Henri Cochet in straight sets. France, therefore, remains unchallenged in singles play the world over and probably can and will win in this department the three matches necessary to the retention of the cup in the challenge round late this month.

No More Concessions Here. But the wedge that will loosen its moorings this year and cause the cup to rock and totter and ultimately fall in the year or two immediately following was the victory of Allison and Van Ryn, young, highly inexperienced Americans, in the Wimbledon all-comers' final. It meant that American perseverance finally had beaten Europe—and France in particular—at its own game. It meant that an American doubles team had attained world domination for the first time since Tilden and Johnston occupied their throne on the sheer brilliance of their individualism. It meant ultimate victory where many had looked forward to years of failure.

The doubles constitute the "odd" match of the Davis Cup series; therefore, if the opposing singles players are a stand-off, the doubles constitute the great convincer. And for two or more years France's combination of Cochet and Brugnon has had the doubles conceded to it before it started. But no more.

It domination ended Saturday or to be more precise, at least 48 hours earlier, at which time no less than three American teams, namely Van Ryn and Allison, Tilden and Hunter and Lott and Hennessey, qualified for the semi-finals. Meantime, the French entries, Cochet and Brugnon and Landry and Boussus, had been run right out of the tournament. America, in consequence, will enter the challenge round this year with the fighting chance that must be conceded to any team that has the "drop" on at least one match before a racket is flashed.

Furnished the Evidence. I don't presume to know the mind of the Davis Cup committee, but, frankly, it appears as if no less than name Van Ryn and Allison for the challenge round doubles. They are a kid team but youth is an added recommendation when it happens to have also the will to win and the ability to do so. Neither of its principals previously had given evidence of international tendencies; Van Ryn, indeed, was making his first venture of consequence in a major tournament.

But no matter. They furnished all the evidence necessary when they defeated Tilden and Johnston in the semi-finals and then Saturday won a heart-breaking five set match from Collins and Gregory, the Englishmen, who had climbed over Cochet and Brugnon and Lott and Hennessey on their way to the final. In fact, that isn't evidence; that's proof.

DOWN THE STRETCH Packs to Ignore Lewis-Sonnenberg Match Winner

By Melvin D. Fulcher
To the strains of My Old Kentucky Home, Dixie and Auld Lang Syne, played by Ed Holton's band, the Kentucky organization which has conducted racing at Fairmount since its inception in 1922 stepped out of the picture, with the running of the last race Saturday. Racing at Fairmount in the future will be under the direct supervision of the new owners, Messrs. Eddy of New Orleans and Cattarachi of Montreal whose recent acquisition of the racing plant was the big news that broke at the meeting just closed.

With the exception of Col. Lyman T. Hay, former president of the board of directors, all of the old stockholders have been supplanted. Robert S. Eddy Jr. of New Orleans assuming the duties formerly looked after by C. Bruce Head. Head will depart for Chicago within a few days, where he will be assistant to Matt J. Winn in the operation of various tracks. The old organization was exceedingly reluctant to discuss the finances of the Fairmount jockey which, it was admitted, caused the former board of directors and General Manager Head nothing but grief for several meetings.

Racegoers were unanimous in the opinion that it was just as well not to discuss this feature, they taking the attitude that there was little use in framing losing tickets, so to speak. The future is what counts at Fairmount.

Good Class at Fairmount.

The fact that Tannery, the 2-year-old colt, went to Latonia and won the Latonia trophy, a stake event for 2-year-olds, and Thistle Ann, a 2-year-old filly, went right from Fairmount to Arlington Park at Chicago and won the first big 2-year-old stake, the Post and Padlock, to be run at that track, shows that the class of horses at Fairmount was fully up to average. In addition to the victories of the 2-year-olds, other horses, including Miss Roseade and Big Sweep, both won the same day at Devonshire, while Fairmount horses have finished in the money in good fields at Arlington with more to be heard from as that meeting advances.

Fairmount Prices O.K.

Prices paid at Fairmount at the meeting just closed were uniformly good straight, place and show. This despite the fact that at times the pools were small due to the lightness of the speculation. An unsatisfactory, generally speaking, as an approximate odds board given itself to be, the odds shown on the board did not vary greatly with the final pay-off price. The largest show price noted on any track in many days was Barrone on June 25 who ran third in a 2-year-old race and paid $54.40. This is the fattest show price paid at any time in recent years with the exception of one pay-off at the Pimlico track in a steeplechase race.

Good 3-Year-Olds Scarce.

The scarcity of first rate 3-year-olds this year will be a decided

ST. LOUIS POLO FOUR RALLIES TO BEAT CHICAGO

The Lineups

St. Louis (17). Pos. Onwentsia 10; Simmons 13; Fittpatrick 14; Wallace 5; Wright 2; Love 1. Onwentsia—Fittpatrick 4, Balding 9, R. Simmons 3. St. Louis had seven goal handicaps.

Referee—Sarle Reynolds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 8.—St. Louis won a furious football game yesterday afternoon from the crack Onwentsia four here, 17 to 16. Three minutes overtime was necessary to decide the contest, Simmons driving through the winning advance, brilliant play by Wallace, Wight and Simmons.

Wallace starred for the winners, scoring five of their nine actual goals, and riding brilliantly. Simmons, Wight and Wallace also played well, and the entire team, with more experience, gave indications of being one of the best in this section of the country.

Starting with a seven-goal handicap, St. Louis was not in danger until the sixth chukker, when the Missourians slowed down as was the case the day before. Onwentsia took advantage of the break, and rang up five goals to knot the count at 13-13.

Onwentsia followed up this rally with two more goals at the start of the seventh, and apparently was on the way to an overwhelming victory. The first of these goals was the result of St. Louis errors. Balding was fouled, and was given a safety shot from 20 yards in front of St. Louis goal. He drove a vicious ball, which went through the entire St. Louis team, rolling across the goal line.

Balding immediately followed this with a long shot to put Onwentsia two goals in the lead. Wallace narrowed the margin to one goal, 15 to 14, as the seventh period ended.

Chicago Increases Lead.

Opening the eighth chukker, St. Simmons, who played at the No. 4 position for Onwentsia today, scored, to give Onwentsia a two-goal lead, which, with less than ten minutes remaining, looked like an insurmountable advantage. When the ball was put into play after Simon's goal, Wallace batted it out of the melee in the center of the field, and raced in the van of the others down the field, through the wickets. The Missourians had another chance immediately afterwards, when, after the play had been all over the field, Wallace drove a hard one directly toward the goal. Balding, Onwentsia's best player, made a brilliant stop of the ball, and sent it back into the field. Balding attempted to start an onrush toward his goal, but Wallace slammed it for a goal.

Wight scored the tying goal right afterwards after a scramble on the St. Louis goal, but Wight took advantage of an opening, and scored on a 30-yard shot.

The eighth chukker ended as Onwentsia made a furious onslaught on the St. Louis goal. Balding's hit put into play at that point at the start of the extra period. Simmons made a pretty stop of Balding's shot, and sent the ball to Wight who took it halfway down the field. He missed the ball, but Wallace, who was behind, recovered, and passed to Simmons, who scored the winning goal.

ST. LOUIS STARS TAKE DOUBLEHEADER FROM MEMPHIS, 16-0, 3-1

The St. Louis Stars in the Negro National Baseball League made three straight victories when they defeated the Memphis Red Sox in a double-header yesterday at the Stars' Park. It is 6 and 3 to 1 in the first game, a certain point they could throw him about with ridiculous ease. In seven matches he was thrown out of the ring more than 20 times. Some of these feats occurred in St. Louis, and even Renato Gardini, who among experts is not considered either a great wrestler or an unusually powerful man, hurled Lewis from the Champion Suspended.

NOW Lewis is to wrestle this afternoon with the title against an opponent who, wrestling critics assert, has as little actual knowledge of the game as Wayne Munn and who has been suspended by the commissions of two or three states. One of his opponents in "championship matches," Dan Koloff, has been barred because he wrestled Sonnenberg in "title" bouts in different cities, under different names.

BOSTON DROPPING OUTDOOR BOXING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, July 8.—Expectations that Boston might witness a huge outdoor boxing program this year suffered rather a shock when, after two open air shows at Braves Field, it was decided to hold the remainder of the summer program, excepting one or two major attractions, at the Boston Garden.

Eddie Mack, promoter at the garden and at the bouts at Braves Field, said that the indoor fights would minimize the number of postponements.

A new cooling system and a series of air blowers have been installed at the North Station Arena, which will keep the garden at a comfortable temperature despite the heat.

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Singular Career.

WHETHER "Strangler" Ed Lewis will, for the fourth time in his career, regain a lost wrestling championship crown, has the boys in Boston guessing. Tomorrow night Lewis will oppose Gus Sonnenberg for the third time, and just what to expect is what worries the critics, whose noses are lifted to the breeze to catch the right odor.

Ed has regained his honors so often during some 18 years of ring activity, that it is not on the cards to count him out of the running.

Stecher, Zibby, Munn and Sonnenberg all have laid Lewis low, only to see him come back and conquer his conquerors—with the exception of Sunny Boy.

Will Gus share the fate of the others tomorrow night? We ask you.

Considering Lewis' dramatic career, it would not be expecting too much to see him regain the title. In fact, one rather figures he will not only win the crown, but go on another of those kale-gathering expeditions in which he defends his title against Tom. Dick and Harry, heavily upholding his bank account at a minimum risk. That has been the history of Ed's previous comebacks.

Lewis Rebut Wrestling.

SINCE Lewis came into the game, the rather drab but serious sport of wrestling has taken on a new flavor and many new wrinkles. Lewis began it by taking on a name that was not his own—"Strangler Lewis," a ring moniker borrowed from the original Evan Lewis, known as the "strangler" because he actually did to grips that means of defeating his foe.

Robert Frederick, who is the present Ed Lewis, decided that a flashy name would help him. He has, having specialized in the ancient and venerable "Chancery hold," which he re-christened the "strangler." Ed called himself "Strangler."

In his career since, Lewis has taken part in more unusual and exciting contests than any man in the history of the game in this country or Europe, so far as we can learn. For example: He wrestled a match with Stecher which went five hours without a fall.

He won one championship because his opponent, Stecher, developed neuritis. He lost one title (to Zbyszko) because "rolling falls" were legal.

He lost again to a wrestler (Wayne Munn whom he afterwards defeated many times), on a most peculiar foul and a queer ruling by the referee.

He regained the title from a man whom he had refused to meet for four years, when Lewis himself had the title—Joe Stecher.

He lost it again to a man whom he previously had beaten (Sonnenberg) on a foul so subtle that it seems incredible a referee could fail to recognize it. Lewis never made an official protest, as far as we could learn.

The dramatic in Lewis' mat history has not been confined to his championship career. When he is defending his title from week to week, his struggles took on a new complexity. It seemed that, although he could always beat his foe up to a certain point they could throw him about with ridiculous ease. In seven matches he was thrown out of the ring more than 20 times. Some of these feats occurred in St. Louis, and even Renato Gardini, who among experts is not considered either a great wrestler or an unusually powerful man, hurled Lewis from the ring two or three times in one match here.

"Condition" No Object.

MANY "hospital cases" have developed as a result of Lewis' championships. That is to say, reports have followed matches indicating that either Lewis or his opponents have been badly hurt.

In one of his matches here his victim was reported to be suffering from concussion. The next morning a telephone call related that the victim was in bad shape and was still in a "serious condition." But that night he took the train for Memphis and the following day he wrestled in that city.

In his first match with Sonnenberg Lewis sidestepped one of Sonnenberg's tackling—the easiest way to beat him—and Sonnenberg dived out head first to the concrete. It was reported a hospital case. He probably was considerably shaken up.

In Kansas City, Lewis himself was a casualty when Munn lifted him up and dropped him over the ropes. At least it was reported that he was so badly hurt that he was not able to continue. But he did, and he lost the third fall, and the title.

STRANGE verdicts also have featured Lewis matches; and several times, to the writer's knowledge, he has "defended his title" under conditions that no man who feared the loss of his crown would seemingly be foolishly enough to face. In St. Louis he has, as champion, wrestled with his eyes in such condition from trachoma or other eye disease that he almost had to grope his way about. On more than one occasion he has been in the ring in poor shape, boils and other evidences of bad condition making the fact obvious.

Through it all came Lewis bobbing up again and going over the top, against the men who conquered him.

It is reported from the East that Lewis is now fat and sluggish in his preparation for his comeback with Sonnenberg. Don't let that deter you, if you like his chances. It is the blarney, rather than the usual, that marks all of Lewis' contests.

One ought to feel surprised if Sonnenberg should win again. It will mark Lewis' end as a championship factor, if he is defeated.

And really, after winning three titles, four championships and five fortunes, who can blame him if he wants to leave this field of strenuous, though somewhat historic endeavor?

They are Miss Albinia Ostpovich of the Worcester boys' club auxiliary, who won the free style title at the Olympic games last summer, and Miss Joan McSheehy of Whitman, national indoor basketball champion.

DAVIS THROWS 128 RINGERS EXHIBITION HERE

C. C. Davis, five times champion horseshoe pitcher, gave an exhibition at the Fairmount yesterday, playing four matches and winning all of them.

He threw 128 ringers in 284 throws for an average of 427. Fortscheider scored more runs against Davis than any other player, getting 25. Jim Potts scored 20, Frank Meyer 19, Henry Dietz 10. Davis also threw the crowd his bag of tricks much to the amusement of the fans.

In the regular league matches in Division 1 of the Missouri Horseshoe League, the "Bulls" strengthened their hold on second place by winning 11 out of 12 games from the Angelicas.

Free Juniors won 10 and lost 12, while the Flints won 10 and lost 12. The Larrs, while the Flints won 10 and lost 12, the Larrs won 10 and lost 12.

Other four games of the match were postponed.

Jim Putman, Sunsets, led in averages with 97 ringers out of 204 throws, for an average of 475. Frank Meyer, Sunsets, averaged 427; Henry Dietz, Flints, 415; A. Hoffmann, Flints, 415.

In Division 2, the Sullivan won 15 games and lost only one to the Morgans, and the Kuhlmanns won 10 and lost six to the Hennigers.

The standings:

Those Golden Shoes.

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—The running shoes with which Gene Simpson, Ohio State star, won a sprint record have been given to him as a trophy. His shoes are now on display at a local shoe store. His ultimate disposal is in dispute but they seem headed for a museum.

They are Miss Albinia Ostpovich of the Worcester boys' club auxiliary, who won the free style title at the Olympic games last summer, and Miss Joan McSheehy of Whitman, national indoor basketball champion.

Track—Victory of Eddie Toian, Michigan Negro, over Bruce Wykoff, Sweet and others for national sprint crown.

Turf—Defeat of Blue Larkspur, favorite for 2-year-old crown, by 30-to-1 shot. Grey Coat, in Duver's stable; triumph in classic English Derby for Trigo, 23 to 1.

The biggest upset in sight over the next few months is the prospective defeat of the world's champion Yankees in baseball. The Athletics, choice of only about 10 out of about 60 experts in the pre-season American League odds, appear well enough equipped to protect the big lead they have gained over the "hiders."

The National League race is too close to determine whether an upset may occur. However, the Pittsburgh Pirates, not so favorably regarded in the advance figuring, now have as bright prospects as either of the two pre-season favorites, Cubs and Giants.

There is always the danger of an upheaval in golf, and even the great Bobby Jones will not be entirely free of risks when he tackles the rugged coast-line Del Monte course in quest of his fifth national amateur crown early in September. Nevertheless, he will be regarded as something like an even chance against the field, which will include Cyril Tolley, the British champion.

In tennis, Helen Wills seemingly has no serious obstacle in the path of another unbeaten season, while the French Davis Cup team may be expected to dominate again the challenge round situation, whether or not the United States is the challenger. The Cochet-Lacoste command of the courts is now quite as clear-cut as was the Tilden-Johnston reign of a few years ago for America.

Future Hopes in Tennis. If their astonishing form at Wimbledon is a criterion, the future of Davis Cup competition will be Johnny Van Ryn, the hard-hitting ex-Princetonian, and Wilmer Allison, the Texas youth. Both outsiders not only the veterans, Tilden and Hunter, but the experienced top ranking four in American tennis.

VANITIE

LAMBERT YACHT IS AIDED WHEN RESOLUTE LOSES SPINNALER POLE

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ISLESBORO, Me., July 8.—Not only did Gerard B. Lambert's handsome sloop, Vanitie, make comparatively fast time in the 130-mile race from Marblehead to Rockland yesterday in the first run of the Eastern Yacht Club cruise, but he proved himself an able sea boat, by leading the fleet into the fog-bound harbor by many hours.

Her rival, E. W. Clark's Resolute, had hard luck for late Friday night in the rain and fog for spinnaker pole broke and she spent hours in recovering the sail.

The Vanitie beat her over seven hours and a half, the longest margin in the season's racing between the two yachts.

The Vanitie, with the big schooner, Atlantic, also flying the Lambert colors, came up the bay from Rockland yesterday afternoon and was soon surrounded by a flock of small fry from one of the next exclusive summer colonies on the continent.

Lambert stated last night that he expected Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams today and hoped to have him on the Vanitie for the next five days.

He admitted that Secretary Adams would sail the Vanitie, although it is thought that the Secretary's son, who also sailed on the Atlantic in the ocean race last summer, might take the wheel at times.

The yacht will have a short race in the Western Penobscot today and will anchor for the night at North Haven.

UPHEAVALS HAVE BEEN NUMEROUS IN SPORT WORLD

By Alan J. Gould.

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, July 8.—The campaign along the sports trails has reached the halfway point with a flock of upsets already on record and quite a few more in prospect before the base hits give way to touchdowns in popular appeal.

Here are a few of the principal surprises so far:

Golf—The 23-stroke margin of Bobby Jones over Al Espinosa in the United States open playoff and the failure of Johnny Farrell, 1928 champion, to qualify for final 36 holes.

Tennis—Defeat of Cochet-Brugnon and Tilden-Hunter teams in Wimbledon doubles by young Americans—Van Ryn and Allison, in winning title.

Turf—Defeat of California favorite for 2-year-old crown, by 30-to-1 shot. Grey Coat, in Duver's stable; triumph in classic English Derby for Trigo, 23 to 1.

The biggest upset in sight over the next few months is the prospective defeat of the world's champion Yankees in baseball. WALTER MEINE ONLY FIVE HITS ARE GRANTED BY THE BROTHER OF PIRATE PITCHER

Last year's Municipal League champions, the Hoffmeisters, are again back in line with the ideal liquids for first place in the South Side League after yesterday's games.

The Hoffmeisters entered their contest with the Ward-Weismans in undisputed possession of first place. The Ward-Weismans won, 2 to 1, and the ideals gained a tie by defeating the Heim-Gie-Machis, 11 to 1.

Walter Meine, a brother of the Pittsburgh pitcher, Heinie Meine, pitched the Ward-Weismans to victory over the leading Hoffmeisters. Meine allowed the Hoffmeisters only five scattered hits. Gehner, the opposing pitcher, also was in good form, granting only six hits.

The game was marred by a dispute in the ninth that brought on a near riot. Umpire Naumann called a runner safe at first and on the play the winning run went over the plate. Gehner, Hoffmeister pitcher, is alleged to have led an assault on the umpire. Players and fans intervened before serious damage was done.

SENATORS MAY SIGN WEST VIRGINIA STAR

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 8.—Johnny Pervola, who has pitched two no-hit games and slammed out 23 hits in 25 times at bat for the Monongahela West Penn Co. in the local junior league, has attracted the attention of Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators.

Pervola recently received a letter from Griffith complimenting Pervola for his record and inviting him to visit Washington at the expense of the Senator club.

Circles Capture East Side Muny Baseball Series
 John Boron's Circles won the first half championship of the East St. Louis Municipal League when they defeated the Slacks, 4 to 3, in 10 innings on Field No. 1 at Jones Park yesterday afternoon in a playoff contest for the title made necessary when the teams finished the regular schedule in a tie.

Joseph scored the winning run by clever base running in the tenth. With the bases full and one out, Andy Boron rolled to Charley Scott at first who tossed to the plate to get Petras but when Warden threw to first trying for a double play Joseph came in from third to register on a close play with the deciding tally.

It was easily the best game of the season for the East St. Louis Municipal League and 5000 watched the game.

"Ted" Sullivan, Once Manager of Browns, Is Dead

By the Associated Press.
 MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 8.—Theodore P. Sullivan, 78, once prominent in the American and Texas baseball leagues, probably will be buried here Monday. He died at Washington, D. C., Friday, of a stroke suffered on June 22.

Mr. Sullivan was one of the organizers of the Washington and St. Louis clubs. He was also connected with the Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants. Until a few years ago he owned the Waco team of the Texas League, which he organized.

Sullivan was born in County Clare, Ireland. He came to America about 1860 and settled in old Irish ward, Milwaukee.

He became a ballplayer and in the 70's played on the first Milwaukee team with Bill Dodswoth and Billy Furlong, who later became National League umpires. Sullivan also joined the first Milwaukee league team about 1876, and then went to Dubuque, Ia., where he joined with Tom Loftus and Charlie Comiskey.

Sullivan pitched for a time and also played other positions. After Arkansan Wrested Pistol From Officer After Raiders Had Arrested Him at Home at Chidester.

PRISONER SLAIN
BY CONSTABLE

Mother and Sister Alleged to Have Aided in Attack on Second Deputy—Brother Later Picked Up.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHIDESTER, Ark., July 8.—As the result of a liquor raid here last night, R. Marsh, Deputy Sheriff and Marshal of Chidester was killed by Walter Patterson, an alleged bootlegger, and Patterson was slain by Constable Luther Meeks.

A Coroner's jury today exonerated Meeks of blame for the killing. Patterson, 47 years old, who lived here with his mother, sister and one brother, had been suspected of making liquor. Marsh and Meeks, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff John Pruitt, went to Patterson's house and said they found liquor in the smokehouse.

They arrested Patterson and started away with him. When they were about 50 yards from the house, followed by Patterson's mother and sister, Patterson seized Marsh's pistol and started shooting. Marsh struggled with him to regain possession of the weapon but one bullet passed through the Deputy Sheriff's breast and he fell dead.

According to the report made by the two surviving officers, Patterson then attempted to shoot Pruitt but he had emptied the revolver in the struggle with Marsh. The officers declared that Patterson's mother and sister tried to hold Pruitt when he was attacked by Patterson.

While Pruitt was struggling with Marsh, Constable Meeks was afraid he might hit his brother officer. He finally fired twice. One bullet struck Patterson in the chest and the other in the head. He died instantly.

Marsh was 50 years old and is survived by his wife and three children. He has been town marshal at intervals for several years and was born and reared in this vicinity.

Patterson's brother, Albert Patterson, was arrested after the shooting although he was not at the house when Marsh was killed. He is suspected of being implicated with Walter Patterson in bootlegging activities.

SEVERAL INJURED IN FIGHT AT JERSEY CITY BALL GAME
Negroes and White Spectators Clash After Argument Between Two Players.

By the Associated Press.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 8.—An argument between two baseball players at Montgomery Bowl here Sunday afternoon precipitated a free-for-all fight in which several persons were injured. Two men were arrested. The disturbance was quelled only after three detachments of police had been called.

The trouble started when a Negro base runner accused the white second baseman, Charles Regency of Bayonne, N. J., of fouling him as he slid into the base. Spectators, about evenly divided between whites and Negroes, rushed onto the field and began fighting.

Regency, struck in the stomach and the mouth with a baseball bat, was taken to the City Hospital. Sam Solomon of Jersey City, a Negro spectator, was arrested as his assailant and held in $1000 bail. James Mott of Jersey City, a white spectator, was arrested on a charge of attempted assault. Two Negroes were released.

KIDNAPED BOY FOUND DEAD,
MOTHER TELLS OF THREATS

By the Associated Press.

SAUGUS, Mass., July 8.—Shrieking, "Patsy has carried out his threat," Mrs. Santil Demori of the North End district of Boston, today identified the body of a 10-year-old boy found in the marshes here yesterday as that of her son, Salvatore. The boy had been missing 19 days.

According to police, "Patsy" was the leader of a "Black Hand" group in Boston, which, in a letter, demanded $5000 from the boy's father under threat of injury to his family. The threat, police said, was the outgrowth of a feud of long standing. The first demand was made shortly before the boy disappeared. During his absence, two similar letters were received. The identity of "Patsy" is known to police.

Dr. Nathaniel P. Breed, who examined the boy's body, was unable to say pending further investigation whether death had been caused by violence or drowning. Mrs. Demori denied to police that her husband had placed $5000 behind St. Anthony's Church in Revere as ransom for her son. It was learned from friends of the family, however, that she previously said it had been done.

Facts Every Person Should Know and Remember!

Men and women, for years, have been gaining Independence by investing some of their earnings in Good Real Estate. Thousands of instances where people have made profits, both large and small, could be published here but lack of space forbids it.

When a farmer plants his crops there is no way by which he can accurately prophesy the coming of Frosts, Floods, Droughts or Storms. The seeds that he has sown in the plowed and harrowed ground must go on their great adventure, and the Farmer must gamble his labor, his time and his money on the chance of making a profit.

But, you—The Investment Real Estate Buyer who buys land in growing sections of our great Industrial Cities, you take no chances as the Farmer does. You are sure of a large profit even at regular prices and with our large and liberal discount of 20%, you are doubly sure that within a reasonable time your Investment will be worth twice what you paid for it.

Every time a new family comes to town, and they are coming by the hundreds; every time a Baby is born, every time a new Home is built and every time a new Factory opens its doors, Your property gains a little more in value.

Just think of the large price of the property that you live in today, and of how much less it was worth but a few years ago. Who has made the profit?

You have watched investments in the Business world and you know that every business, must depend upon the Honesty, Intelligence and experience of the men who control them. But, when you buy land, you are your own President, Treasurer and Board of Directors and you depend on no one—only the sure, steady growth of this Great City and County.

You have seen factories start and fail, merchants rise to dizzy heights and then fall, and you have seen bankers and great financiers who are leaders of their community today and bankrupt tomorrow. You have watched the human trail of commerce and of the professions. It is strewn with failures, bankrupts, disasters, crime, convictions, suicides and oblivion; the results of human traits and character.

In contrast, you have seen the men who have been friendly with the land—who have bought it and improved it; who have held it and who have sold it at a profit. Among these people you have seen the Happiest Homes in the Nation, the Cleanest Minds, the Strongest Bodies, the Truest Citizenship and the loftiest Patriotism. Be one of them!

URGES DOCTORS TO OPERATE PAY CLINICS

New American Medical Association Head Suggests Plan at Convention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PORTLAND, Ore., July 8.—Who will control the dollars that are spent each year to protect and remedy the health of the nation? Individual physicians such as now practice as family doctors? Corporations formed for the practice of medicine? State or government agencies? Co-operative organizations of physicians? Industrial organizations that hire physicians to serve their employees?

This question, raising the property of medical publicity and advertising, was injected into the opening deliberations of the American Medical Association here this morning when Dr. Malcolm K. Harris of Chicago, president-elect of the association, urged that physicians co-operatively organize, own, control and operate pay clinics, the profits of which shall be paid those who do the work.

Dr. Harris' plan provides that at present only persons capable of visiting the clinic but unable to pay regular fees for the services should be served by the medical centers incorporated and operated by the county medical societies. The medical center patients would be charged a fee depending on their income. Dr. Harris suggested that those unable to pay anything for their medical attention are charges of the community and that the city or county should therefore compensate the co-operative medical center for the services rendered to them. Eventually the same system of service should be extended to homes and hospitals in order to fulfill, as Dr. Harris said, "an undisputed obligation of the profession, the distribution of high-class medical service to the mass of the people at a cost within their means."

Several Plans Proposed.
Dr. Harris' plan is only one of those proposed to meet what Dr. Olin West, secretary of the association, termed in his report "the strain of a great transitional stage in the life of our country which the medical profession in common with all other groups of society is feeling."

Pointing out that the American Medical Association last year voted that corporations should not practice medicine, and that there is a rapidly growing tendency of organizations controlled not by doctors but by laymen to enter medicine, Dr. William Allen Pusey of Chicago, a past president of the association, introduced a resolution that it passed would allow the House of Delegates to consider this controversial question in secret session this week and which would cause a comprehensive report to be rendered to next year's meeting.

Hospitals that advertise or give publicity to their successful cases would be investigated and penalized under a resolution introduced by Dr. Burt R. Shurly of Detroit.

On Socialistic Principles.
Such discussion of the business side of medicine, while it has been in progress for years, is now playing a more prominent part in medical meetings. The expulsion of a Chicago physician of high standing from the local medical organization because a clinic with which he co-operated advertised is but one of the incidents in the consideration of the finances of medicine.

For years the medical profession has been one of the few activities run on what might be called Socialistic principles. Most physicians will object to such characterization of their finances. If you buy a loaf of bread or a pound of sugar, you pay the same price for it whether you be pauper or millionaire. But medical service is sold in most cases in accordance with the ability of the patient to pay. The pauper pays nothing for a major surgical operation. A millionaire may pay a part of his fortune. It is said to be common practice of some clinics and physicians of large practice to obtain a commercial credit rating on patients and fix fees accordingly.

The cost of medical care is just as important to the public which is served as to the physician who earns their living by providing the service. Physicians and laymen alike are participating in a national inquiry into the cost of medical care.

GLAZER SHOTS SELF TWICE; RESCUER TAKES AWAY RAZOR
Charles Smith, 52 years old, a glazier, is at city hospital in critical condition from two self-inflicted bullet wounds in the head.

He was found in a workshop in the rear of 2118 Franklin avenue, the home of Hyman Abelson, with whom Smith had worked and made his home for 15 years, when Mrs. Abelson was attracted by the shots at 1:15 p. m. yesterday. Finding the door locked, she called her son, Ben Abelson, 915 North Twenty-first street, who broke into the building in time to seize a razor with which Smith was attempting to cut himself.

TELLS CUBA OF SUGAR TARIFF
Envoy to U. S. Returns to Make Report to President.
HAVANA, July 8.—Col. Orestes Ferrer, Cuban Ambassador to Washington, has returned here to make a report to President Machado on the United States sugar tariff increase proposals.

"I can well understand the state of anxiety existing in Cuba with respect to the proposed tariff increases by the United States," said the Ambassador today, "and I know that the economic life or death of our island republic rests in the hands of American Legislators. We cannot interfere with legislation of another nation, but can only clearly present our problems and trust to the vision of American Legislators and President Hoover. I personally believe that in no case will our northern neighbors permit our complete economic downfall nor the destruction of our great national industry."

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The State Department today made public an executive order restricting the entrance of all persons from China or the Philippine Islands into the United States, except under conditions prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, as a result of the continuance of an epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis in those sections.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Perpetual Motion

OUR BIGGEST CUSTOMER. By George Harrison Phelps. (Horse Liverlight.)

MR. GEORGE HARRISON PHELPS is at great pains to explain in a preface to this book the labor problem that positively he is not a "red." To the contrary, he assures us that "a capitalist distaste for words, as well as figures, that register red."

The statement hardly seems necessary, considering the fact that, from the very beginning, Mr. Phelps divides the human race into two distinct classes—"us" and "the laboring man," "we" quite clearly signifying the industrial masters and their lieutenants. A dairyman could scarcely be more explicit in discussing his herd.

What should be "our" attitude towards labor? How should "we" approach the problem of unemployment? These questions are discussed, not in the interest of the laboring man but from the viewpoint of greater profits for "us," as Mr. Phelps needlessly insists.

Mr. Phelps has hit upon a new but not an original idea, since one Mr. Ford has been expounding it for some time. He has come to realize, with something of the force of an apocalyptic vision, one gathers, that there are a great many more laboring men in fact, laboring men constitute 90 per cent of the human population. Now how are "we" going to prosper if we do not will in ever increasing amounts to these same laboring men? And how can these people buy back in steadily increasing amounts the products of their labor if many of them lack employment and if those who are employed have not money enough to turn the trick? Obviously, it can't be done.

What, then, must be done? Mr. Phelps makes it all clear. Everybody in the laboring class must be employed, and this desirable state of affairs can be realized by decreasing the number of hours of labor per man per year. But merely shortening the work day and instituting the five-day week will not increase the total purchasing power of the laboring class. Wages must be raised at the same time. The more and more strenuous publicity of every conceivable sort must be directed at this fellow with his increased pay so that he will spend all of it. Furthermore, every effort must be made to invent more and more things that the laboring man could possibly be induced to buy. The increased leisure time, as Mr. Phelps points out, give the laboring man more time to acquire, new desires under the steadily increasing stimulation of publicity schemes. Installment buying must be encouraged as much as possible, so that not only will the laboring class spend all it has as fast as received, but it will constantly be in debt to "us."

Thus, as anyone can see, a sort of economic perpetual motion will be set up, the laborer producing more and more as machines develop, and consuming more and more and more, and producing more and more and more, and consuming more and more and more—right on into the twentieth century Utopia.

Utopia is right, for with the invention of more and more ingenious labor-saving machines the time is sure to come— isn't it?—when labor will be almost wholly "saved" and the world will be nearly automatic. "We" shall, of course, keep on increasing wages as a means of increasing purchasing power for our increasing industrial output, and so, by and by, the laboring class shall be only a consuming class with nothing to do but to study publicly, acquiring new desires and satisfying them all day long, year in and year out. That will be the life!

It seems that there might be something wrong about all this, but why be a crab?

In the meanwhile, "milk from contented cows" is "our" slogan. At the same time it presented Louise Brown, as co-star with Leon Errol, Miss Brown, dainty and charming, and a dancer far above the ordinary, has the most pleasing personality on the musical comedy stage and her, coupled with the droll Mr. Errol, the rough and tumble antics of the pleasing Virginia Smith and the splendid work of the youthful Garden chorus, makes "Lady Fingers" a real delight.

It cannot be said that the piece, made from a play by Owen Davis which has already been done in motion pictures, places any tax upon the thinking powers of its audience. In its present form, however, and with the help of the excellent cast, it moves so swiftly that there is no time for one to stop and wonder what it is all about. The story tells in musical comedy fashion, of a light fingered crook who robs banks and society people right and left, playing no favorites while playing his trade. His pal, an inebriated youth who knows nothing of his friend's pilfering proclivities, is made to look guilty, too. That breaks up a budding romance between the young man and his sweetheart who in the end, as is the custom of musical comedies, everything comes out most satisfactorily.

Errol is the crook with the lady fingers, Sam Critcherson his young friend and Louise Brown, of course, the girl. One of the two acts is set in a health resort and there Virginia Smith is a hard boiled nurse who knows what she wants, and gets it. This week Errol gets away from his folding legs and plays his role almost as a straight comedy part but gets as many laughs as he did in the Garden's previous offerings when he was falling about the stage. Miss Brown is a real delight. Next week she is to remain over to play the title role in "Sally," another of the Errol hits. Adolphe Kornepan, who made his bow as the new musical director of the Garden last night, showed the effects of his long training in motion picture houses and kept the orchestra going at full speed all of the time and "Lady Fingers" is excellent entertainment from start to finish.

"LADY FINGERS" FINE SUMMER NIGHT SHOW

Louise Brown Wins Instant Favor in Fast Entertainment at Garden.

LADY FINGERS, a musical comedy by Eddie Buzzell and Joseph Meyer, presented with Leon Errol, Louise Brown and the following cast at the Garden Theatre:

By H. H. NIMMEYER. THE Theater Society of St. Louis last night uncovered, at the Garden Theatre, in "Lady Fingers," a zippy, fast-moving farce with music which meets all of the requirements for fine entertainment of a warm summer's night.

THOSE who enjoy a little way-back-whening try to compare the modern whisper-low bar to the old time saloon. The only missing feature seems to be the smell of empty beer kegs piled out front. Crusts of cloves, orange peel and coffee still dot the mahogany and on holidays mirrors are soaped with peached art of old. In many places the swing doors lead directly from the street, giving passers by an intimate peep of busy bartenders scraping off the froth.

YET that easy mannered humor of the old saloon is gone. The modern mode is taut like a burglar creeping through a hall. Everybody is whetted to a cat like expectancy. They gulp and run.

THE Knickerbocker bar was perhaps the most famous of all here hung Maxfield Parrish's painting of old King Cole. Six barkeeps, with sharp and ready tongues, were on constant duty. The whisky glasses were the largest in town and the crowd the most colorful. Life ran high. In the capacious deep cushioned seats against the wall one might see Wilson Mizner, Al Woods, Frank O'Malley, Paul Armstrong, Caruso and a host of others. Actors, star journalists, reigning novelists, producers and playwrights dropped in some time during the day. Imitation celebrities, clutching at the spotlight, drifted in and out along with the professional Southerners, the broken down opera singer and the latest figures in the town's high scandals.

(spelling but not pronunciation guaranteed) supply ballet interludes while Gilda changes to another gorgeous costume. All the ladies are seasonably dressed. Joseph E. Howard who wrote "Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and other songs too numerous to mention, recalls old times in his own melodies. A young woman who sings from the audience helps out his turn very much. Bert Gordon with a comedy face accompanied by Louise Squire, Venita Gould in imitations and Blomberg with his Alaskan dogs fill up the interludes agreeably.

"Piccadilly," a story by Arnold Bennett, is the picture. Gilda Gray is the dancing star and Anna May Wong, a wonderfully effective Chinese Circle. There are many striking bits of detail and a novel method of screening is followed, but the ending is a trifle vague.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 8. LARY of modern peeps. Up to visit Mr. Adlerblum, the accounting expert, who arranged a budget for income taxes, which I professed to understand albeit it is Greek. Lunched on a dish spiced with onion and garlic and smelt like a switch engine the rest of the day.

With Ewing Galloway, the photographer, to watch him play tennis and high through the town on a bus trip to Washington Square wandering through the Village. And an irate man yelled for a sleeping fellow to get off his door step out suite—adding "the tooter the sweeter."

In the evening with my wife and Mrs. Julius Valish to a dinner of corn pone and beans and more onions. And to a theater where I told George Jean Nathan a fellow empty beer kegs piled out front. Crusts of cloves, orange peel and coffee still dot the mahogany and on holidays mirrors are soaped with peached art of old. In many places the swing doors lead directly from the street, giving passers by an intimate peep of busy bartenders scraping off the froth.

YET that easy mannered humor of the old saloon is gone. The modern mode is taut like a burglar creeping through a hall. Everybody is whetted to a cat like expectancy. They gulp and run.

THE Knickerbocker bar was perhaps the most famous of all here hung Maxfield Parrish's painting of old King Cole. Six barkeeps, with sharp and ready tongues, were on constant duty. The whisky glasses were the largest in town and the crowd the most colorful. Life ran high. In the capacious deep cushioned seats against the wall one might see Wilson Mizner, Al Woods, Frank O'Malley, Paul Armstrong, Caruso and a host of others. Actors, star journalists, reigning novelists, producers and playwrights dropped in some time during the day. Imitation celebrities, clutching at the spotlight, drifted in and out along with the professional Southerners, the broken down opera singer and the latest figures in the town's high scandals.

(spelling but not pronunciation guaranteed) supply ballet interludes while Gilda changes to another gorgeous costume. All the ladies are seasonably dressed. Joseph E. Howard who wrote "Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and other songs too numerous to mention, recalls old times in his own melodies. A young woman who sings from the audience helps out his turn very much. Bert Gordon with a comedy face accompanied by Louise Squire, Venita Gould in imitations and Blomberg with his Alaskan dogs fill up the interludes agreeably.

"Piccadilly," a story by Arnold Bennett, is the picture. Gilda Gray is the dancing star and Anna May Wong, a wonderfully effective Chinese Circle. There are many striking bits of detail and a novel method of screening is followed, but the ending is a trifle vague.

American Factor Visits Hindenburg By the Associated Press. BERLIN, July 8.—President von Hindenburg today received the Rev. F. H. Knobel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, who attended the recent Lutheran world convention at Copenhagen. Dr. Knobel was accompanied by Jacob Gould Schurman, the American Ambassador.

The Week's New Films

By NIE

F the movie producers could

with all of the boys and girls talking too. It's a whole lot better than the pace set by "Behind That Curtain," which is the feature at the Fox Theater this week, the legitimate stage might really have something to worry about. Translated into celluloid by George Middleton, an experienced and successful playwright, from a best seller by Earl Derr Biggers this picture is a skillfully done and extremely interesting mystery drama which does not resort to hidden doors and masked terrors for its action. The direction by Irving Cummings is perfect and although the long arm of coincidence is almost wrenched from the shoulder at one time the story moves swiftly and consistently to a plausible finish. It begins with a murder in London and carries the characters on to India, Persia and then to San Francisco, although the audience is let in on the secret of who did the killing before the play is half done. The latter part of the film is devoted to tracking down the guilty man and the romance of his wife with an old, and honorable, sweetheart. The cast could not be improved upon. Warner Baxter, Lois Moran, Gilbert Emery and Philip Strange form a quartet made to order for the talking screen, and "Behind That Curtain" is far and away the best adult picture produced so far. See it by all means.

Dramatizing the Dictionary. THE other side of the shield presented by the talking pictures is on exhibition at Loew's where "The Idle Rich" is on view and within hearing. Billed as a 100 per cent talkie it is just that, for at the start of the first reel the characters begin to talk and they are still at it when the seventh, and last, spool of film is unwound. The conversation seems interminable for, as far as we could discover, no one had anything to talk about. But the sound machine was on the job and so the actors kept up a steady flow of words which meant to convey the impression, if they meant anything, that Conrad Nagel was a rich young man who had married Lella Hyams, his stenographer. Lella was poor and so was her family, but they were too proud to take any of Conrad's easy money and not until the very end of the picture was he able to make them see the error of their ways. There may be whole families like that, but up to the moment of galloping to press we have not bumped into any of them. On the same bill this week is an "Our Gang" comedy with all of the boys and girls talking too. It's a whole lot better than the pace set by "Behind That Curtain," which is the feature at the Fox Theater this week, the legitimate stage might really have something to worry about. Clara Has 'Em.

LOVE in a circus under the big top is the theme of "Dangerous Curves" at the Ambassador with Clara Bow playing the title role most effectively. For Clara is getting—well, chubby, to say the least. In this film she is a bareback rider or something and in love with Richard Arlen who does stunts on a high wire. Dick is too busy making love to Kay Francis to really notice Clara's ultra dangerous curves and when Kay double crosses him he promptly falls from the top of the tent and spends the next few months in a hospital. Nobody but Clara seems to care where he is and so, at the end, he discovers what anyone in the audience could have told him in the first reel—that she is the girl he is going to tie up on the high wire in the final fadeout. "Dangerous Curves" is a nice, entertaining picture of the typical Bow variety. It is also a talkie with Miss Bow's voice being just what you would expect.

Three Weeks in Three Moments. HOW Hollywood millionaires live on their yachts, which are lit by electricity and their guests by noon, if they get up that early, is ably shown in "The Man and the Moment" at the Missouri. It is a story of Elinor Glyn's party done in subtitles and partly in conversation with the beautiful Billie Dove throwing her voice onto the customers for the first time and not hurting her reputation a bit by doing it. Rod La Rocque is the man and he also talks and gets away with it. "The Man and the Moment" is a romance of the fast set which gets decidedly Elinor Glynish, if you know what we mean, at times but it is bright and entertaining and thoroughly enjoyable.

Dies on Honeymoon.

SPECIAL to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, July 8.—William Randolph Walsh, 36 years old, cable editor of the New York Times, died yesterday after a mastoid operation in the Montreal general hospital, Montreal, Que. He was on his honeymoon to his home, St. Johns, N. B., in company with his wife, who was Miss Ethel Slough of Abington, Ill. They were married June 29. He leaves his wife, his father, a St. Johns merchant, and a sister, Mrs. Josie Walsh Barrett, also of St. Johns.

Washington. DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, July 8.

Connecticut avenue, just a few blocks removed from the heart of Washington, is a small tract of land known as one circle.

One side live the money and social life of the national capital. Calvin Coolidge made his home in the stone mansion on the right while the White House underwent repairs. A half dozen or more foreign embassies and legations are in immediate vicinity.

On the other side are garages, cafeterias, billiard parlors, banks and drug stores—a small part of a large city.

Connecticut avenue comes up from the west side to the right, and then stretches until it is lost in Maryland.

One nowhere else is the cosmopolitan character of Washington shown better than on one spot.

One circle is the gathering place for children of the neighborhood.

At as the day begins to warm up they emerge from their homes and take their drive in baby carriages. Frequently a big parade with crest and coat-of-arms on the doors will drive up and discharge the children and child. Others trudge along, hand in hand, to school.

Some are English, some French and some German. There are Chinese and Japanese.

They are the children from the embassies and legations, of the money and social life, of the high officialdom of Government and of Congress. Not all of them, there are also to be seen children of plain people from the other side of the street.

Nothing that impresses the observer so much as the catholicity of friendships among these children of varying ranks. They meet over and over again at the circle. It is the starting point in the education of the many young people from foreign lands located temporarily in Washington. Here they get acquainted with each other and with the children who live in Washington.

When L'Enfant set aside this piece of ground in his plans for the national capital it probably never occurred to him that it would become a school of diplomacy. Intended it as a memorial to Admiral Lord Nelson, that famous old sea dog who trod the waves of a warship during the days of the American Revolution. Up until a few years ago it was an iron statue of DuPont occupied the center of the circle.

Descendants disliked it. They applied to Congress for permission to remove it and put in its place a fountain. The fountain was granted, and now it is one of the most beautiful little parks in the city.

One of the most interesting and picturesque spots in Washington.

JELLIED TOMATO BOUILLON

Well Seasoned and Thoroughly Chilled. It is Very Appetizing. Cut three large, fresh ripe tomatoes in quarters. Add one-half cup of water, one-half teaspoon of sugar, one small onion cut in slices, and a sprig of parsley. Heat slowly to the boiling point and simmer for 20 minutes. Then rub through a strainer. Add enough water to make two cups of liquid. Reheat and add one bouillon cube, stirring until it is dissolved. Season the mixture to taste with salt, pepper and a little celery salt. Soak two teaspoons of gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water for five minutes. Then add to the hot tomato mixture. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved and pour into bouillon cups or into a shallow bowl to cool. Set aside to stiffen and serve very cold, breaking the jelled mixture lightly with a fork.

Home EconomicsHOW TO PRESERVE RHUBARB

One of the Most Economical and Delicious Preserves.

Take five pounds rhubarb, unpeeled, one-half cup orange juice, unstrained, one-half cup lemon juice, unstrained and six and one-half cups sugar.

Wash, dry and cut rhubarb in small pieces. Add sugar and let stand over night or for four hours. Put on to cook, bring slowly to boiling point, and without stirring, but shaking occasionally, let cook for 20 minutes. Add fruit juices, cook 15 minutes and seal in sterilized jars.

RASPBERRY CHARLOTTE

One of the Most Attractive Berry Desserts Imaginable.

Raspberry charlotte is an attractive dessert. To make it take one-fourth cup cold milk, one cup raspberries, one tablespoon gelatin, one-half cup powdered sugar, one cup cream and one-fourth teaspoon salt.

Crush raspberries and add sugar and salt. Soak gelatin in cold milk and dissolve over boiling water. Add to the fruit and then fold in cream whipped very stiff. Pile high in sherbet glasses which have been lined with lady fingers or strips of stale cake. Chill before serving. Garnish with whole fresh raspberries.

SECOND-DAY DISHESFROM COOKED CORN

Even a Small Amount of Left-Over Cooked Corn May Be Utilized.

No matter how careful and economical a housewife is, there is bound to be an ear or two of green corn left over from yesterday's dinner.

Corn is entirely a too valuable article of food to allow to go to waste so the wise cook plans to use the cold boiled corn in one of the following tasty second-day dishes.

Corn Custard. A nice dish made with left over cooked corn is corn custard. Take two cups cooked corn, two cups milk, two eggs, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon onion minced, two tablespoons green peppers, chopped fine, two tablespoons parsley, minced, and one and one-half tablespoons butter.

Add slightly beaten eggs, salt, pepper, butter, milk and finely chopped vegetables to corn. Turn into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until firm, about one hour.

Fried Corn. Cut corn from several ears. Put several slices of bacon in a frying pan and cook until they are crisp and brown. Remove bacon from pan and pour off all but three or four tablespoons of the fat. Return pan to fire and add the corn. Cook corn in bacon drippings until the vegetable is a delicate brown. Stir while cooking.

Remove from fire, add pepper to taste. Arrange on a hot platter and garnish with the slices of cooked bacon.

Corn Pancakes. These are delicious for breakfast. Use one cup cooked corn cut from the ear, one-half cup milk, two eggs beaten separately, one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon melted butter, three-fourths teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon pepper. Make a batter of the ingredients, folding in the beaten egg whites last. Bake on a hot griddle. Serve with butter and syrup for breakfast or with fried chicken or roast pork.

SEVERAL SAMPLE MENUS FOR CHILDREN'S PARTIES For Youngsters, the Refreshments, of Course, Are Most Important.

The following menus will provide easily digested, simple and attractive foods for some of the children's parties.

1. Brown and white bread sandwiches with fillings of: chopped chicken, cream cheese and jelly, or peanut butter, all cut in small fancy shapes; vanilla ice cream garnished with a bit of jelly or some chocolate pellets, shaved maple sugar, or served with a chocolate sauce; small sponge cakes; orangeade.

2. Fruit salad made from pineapple, oranges, sliced bananas and pitted dates and served with a small amount of plain mayonnaise diluted with fruit juice; plain brown and butter sandwiches cut in strips; ice cream sandwiches made from thin slices of sponge cake with vanilla ice cream between them. This menu is planned for children 10 years old or more.

3. Cream chicken on toast; strips of brown bread and butter; strawberry ice cream and birthday cake.

STUFFED BONED CHOPS

Tempting Way to Prepare Your Favorite Chops.

For this dainty main dish use six mutton chops, two cups bread crumbs, one egg yolk, one-fourth teaspoon whole sage, one onion, grated; one teaspoon salt and two tablespoons fat or butter.

Bone chops and make a pocket in thick end. Mix bread crumbs, egg yolk and seasonings thoroughly. Fill pocket and sew loosely, but firmly, bringing thin end around chop and fastening with toothpick. Place fat in bottom of cooker and when hot but not smoking, brown chops all over.

Place six washed and thinly pared potatoes around chops with carrots, which have been cut into halves. Put on cover and cook one hour and 15 minutes.

Baked Caramel Custard. A dainty summer dessert is caramel custard which may be made with 12 maple caramels, five eggs, one-third cup sugar, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth teaspoon milk and one quart milk. Butter custard cups; put one caramel in each cup. Mix eggs, sugar and salt thoroughly; add vanilla and mace; then stir in milk. Turn into cups and place custard cups in pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven one hour and 15 minutes.

Salmon Stuffed Peppers. Salmon stuffed peppers are made with one can salmon, flaked, one end one-half cups chopped cabbage, one-half cup chopped sweet pickles, one cup chopped peanuts, dash of pepper and salt to taste. Add mayonnaise sufficient to moisten. Parboil small green peppers and remove the seeds. Fill pepper cups with the mixture garnished with pimientos. May be served as a salad on lettuce leaves or else as the main article of a cold plate meal.

A Good Idea.

Put bran in the sugar shaker and use it over a salad or canape. Bran as now prepared has an acceptable sweetness.

VITAL POINTERS FOR SUCCESSFUL CANNING

If Care Be Taken, Home Canning May Be Accomplished With Success.

1—Fresh fruits and vegetables must be selected. Imperfect ones should be set aside for immediate use.

2—Fruits and vegetables must be graded according to size—large, medium and small. Each size forms its own canning. Use large fruit for preserves; medium and small fruit for jams and marmalades.

3—All vegetables and fruits must be washed clean, drained and then prepared by hulling or peeling.

4—When berries are washed very clean, or when pineapple is washed, dried and then pared, no blanching for cold pack canning is necessary. Berries after washing may be graded directly into jars which are set in a deep pan of hot water, so that the jar is half immersed.

5—Select jars of the right size to serve your family. Family of three uses a one-half pint jar; family of four uses a pint jar; family of six uses a quart jar.

6—Wash jars, caps and new rubbers in hot soapy water, rinse and immerse in pan of cold or lukewarm water. Boil jars and caps for 10 minutes to sterilize. Dip new rubbers in boiling water.

7—Place rubber smoothly around neck of jar. Fill jar to overflowing.

8—Screw on the top. If cold pack or oven canning is used, screw top until it catches, but do not tighten until the whole process is complete.

9—Fruits keep brighter, better color if cooked in small quantities.

POPULAR METHOD OF CANNING BERRIES AND SMALL FRUITS

Housewives Have Several Methods of Canning to Select From.

Each succeeding year brings forth new methods of canning fruit and vegetables.

This year, cookery experts have popularized a method of putting up small fruits such as cherries and berries without sugar.

To can cherries according to this method use five quarts cherries and one pint boiling water. Wash, drain and pit cherries. Put in kettle with boiling water, cover and bring to boiling point. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Turn in to sterilized jars, adjust sterilized rubbers and place sterilized cover on loosely. Process 45 minutes in a 250 degree oven. Remove from oven and tighten covers.

Berries, strawberries, raspberries, huckleberries, blackberries, may be canned in the same way. To every five quarts of berries, use one cup boiling water.

Wash, drain and pick over berries. Put into a large kettle with one cup boiling water. Put on to cook, cover kettle and let come slowly to boiling point. Boil slowly one minute. Turn into sterilized jars, adjust sterilized rubbers, put on sterilized covers loosely, place in 250 degree oven and process for one hour. Remove from oven, tighten covers and test for leaks.

RED-HOT SPANISH SALAD

Although Peppery, It Is a Tempting Summer Luncheon Dish.

Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin in half a pint of boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Then add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar to enough water to make one-half pint and pour all together. Next add one teaspoonful Spanish pepper.

When the gelatin starts to set, add three or four slices of finely chopped cold boiled ham, one cup chopped raw cabbage, quarter cup pimento shredded, three sweet pickles chopped fine, and if desired one-half cup walnut meats.

Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Thought for the Day.

Appetites are fickle when the thermometer hovers in or near the nineties, and the meal planner knows that she pleases her family and partially routs the discomfort of these days by serving refreshing drinks, cooling salads and frozen desserts. During the summer months there are many sources from which to draw in the preparation of such foods—the citrus fruits, which are always procurable, the fresh fruits and the berries which are obtainable during this season.

Washington Salmon Salad:
Take one and one-half cups salmon, two tablespoons chopped green peppers, one-half cup finely cut celery, one small onion, minced and pepper and salt to taste. Mix salmon, celery, green pepper and onion. Add salad dressing to moisten and season to taste. Tomatoes may be added to this cut in dice and mixed with the salad or used as a garnish. Place on lettuce leaves and garnish with salad dressing.

Banana Salad.
Split the required number of bananas in half lengthwise. If bananas are very long cut in half again. Spread each strip with peanut butter. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise. Chopped nuts may be sprinkled over fruit if desired.

LAMB CROQUETTES ARE GOOD

They Offer an Appetite Appeal in Hot Weather Menus.

Two cups ground roast lamb, one cup boiled rice, one teaspoon finely ground onion, one cup milk, one tablespoon flour (heaping), butter size of walnut; salt and pepper to taste.

Make a white sauce of the milk, flour and butter. Stir into this the meat, rice and seasonings. Form into shapes, roll in cracker dust, dip in well-beaten egg, roll in cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Good croquettes are insured by making them long enough ahead for them "to set" before being fried.

Introduce Cooling Foods.

Salads and desserts offer a splendid opportunity to introduce into the menu the element of coolness. This year the latitude regarding mixing fruits and vegetables in salad combination seems even more extensive.

CARE MUST BE OBSERVED IN PREPARING BABY'S BOTTLE

Mothers Cannot Be Too Particular in Regard to the Baby's Food.

There are two essentials—accuracy and surgical cleanliness!

In preparing the infant's milk formula, be absolutely accurate in your measurements. Follow your doctor's directions with implicit faith. Remember that the ounce more or less, which seems so relatively unimportant to you, may be a vital thing as related to the health of your baby.

Rinse all articles used for preparing the bottle feeding with cold water—then wash with warm water and a pure soap. Rinse with scalding water. Scald nipples daily, turning them inside out for a thorough scrubbing. Keep nipples when not in use in a covered glass filled with boric acid solution.

As soon as the baby has finished his feeding, remove the bottle and fill it immediately with cold water. As soon as convenient, wash the bottle.

Never refill a soiled bottle with a fresh feeding.

NEW YORK, July 8.—In face of what appeared to be persistent heavy offerings of steel common finally crossed the 200 level, thus lifting its peak again. Steel ran into steady pressure of offerings, but the market was not so much pushed as it had been in the past. The buying was of a character which absorbed such selling at rising levels. Steel's report for the second quarter and the half year will be out on July 30, the last Tuesday of the month. The report is expected in one quarter to show an around $10 a share earned for the junior stock in the first half against $4.86 a share reported in the period last year.

Oil shares had little part in the day's activity aside from Atlantic Refining which reached a new high early only to settle back in speculative dealings. It is expected that crude oil production will show another heavy increase, due to output principally around Oklahoma City and in California.

NEW YORK, July 8.—American Telephone and International Telephone convertible 4 1/2s touched new high ground in today's market at 153 and 144, respectively, but reacted from those levels.

The former issue, however, fell well above last Saturday's close, while the International debenture, on the selling of the stock, fell below the previous final.

Other features in the general steady list were the strength of the foreign sugars and of Philadelphia Reading Coal and Iron at 52, which climbed several points.

Standard railroads, industrial utilities moved within narrow limits on moderate turnover, but were mostly resistant to selling.

Liberties and foreign bonds were inactive and mixed on small volumes.

G. R. ROBINSON ESTATE IS WILLED TO FAMILY

Church, Hospital and Home Receive $5000 Each From Purina Firm Founder.

The will of George R. Robinson, one of the founders of the Ralston-Purina Co. and former manager of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, who died June 22, was filed in Probate Court at Clayton. His four children are the principal heirs, trust funds totaling $173,000 being created for their benefit.

Mr. Robinson's widow, Mrs. Elsie H. Robinson, will receive their home at 423 East Argonne drive, Kirkwood, and its contents. The will stating that she has already received 1678 7 per cent shares of Ralston-Purina stock.

The Kirkwood Old Folks' Home, Grace Episcopal Church of Kirkwood and the Bethesda Duwirth Memorial Hospital will receive $5000 each. The will states that it had always been Mr. Robinson's practice to give one-tenth of his income to churches, institutions, worthy young men and various charities.

The four children and the amounts of the trust funds, each payable at the age of 25, are: Richard, $25,000; Anne, $25,000; Rowan, $40,000; and Spencer, $40,000. Other bequests include $12,000 to Mrs. Angelica Jenkins, a sister; $10,000 to Miss Carrie Shanda, a niece; $500 to Priscilla Powell, a servant, and $6000 to Archie Jenkins, a brother-in-law. The will provides that if there is any residue after the payment of bequests, the trust funds for the four children shall be increased proportionately. Mrs. Robinson, Louis F. Booth and H. A. Hamilton are named trustees.

AVIATION MUSEUM IN GERMANY

STUTTGART, Germany, July 8.—The ninety-first birthday today of the late Count von Zeppelin has been chosen for the founding of the first German aviation museum here with President von Hindenburg and a number of prominent German airplane manufacturers and designers as honorary directors. The first gift to the museum was the Zeppelin company's unique collection of airship models, pictures and documents.

France Replies to Britain.

PARIS, July 8.—The French reply to the British Government concerning organization of the forthcoming reparations conference will be forwarded tomorrow and will maintain the French point of view that the meeting should be held in some neutral country rather than in London as the British Government desires. The French prefer Switzerland, though they are ready to accept any other neutral ground. In substance the French argument is that if the conference is to be held in any big capital it ought to take place in Paris since French interests in the questions to be discussed are paramount.

GIRL FATALLY BURNED LIGHTING FIREWORKS

Jane Moriarity, 5 Years Old, of Kirkwood, Is Victim of Accident.

Jane Moriarity, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Moriarity, 410 W. Argonne drive, Kirkwood, was fatally burned at 5 p. m. yesterday while trying to light some sparklers left over from the family's Fourth-of-July fireworks.

While her parents were in the front of the house, the child went to a back room, obtained the sparklers and matches, and tried to light them, as she had seen her elders do last Thursday. Her dress caught on fire from the matches and she screamed for help.

Her parents extinguished the blaze by throwing water and wrapping her in a rug. Severely burned about the body, she was treated by a Kirkwood physician and then removed to St. Mary's Hospital, where she died three hours later. Moriarity is a clerkman for the Third Ward in Kirkwood, and traffic manager for the Continental Supply Co. There are four other children.

Men seldom invited Edna twice... "B.O." is so unpardonable

HE had begged so hard for this date. And now... Harry was still nice to her. But Edna felt the change. Miserably, she wondered why men always lost interest.

Then Edna learned the trouble. Today she's showered with invitations. She found it's easy to end "B.O."—Body Odor. Just keep perspiration odorless.

Unpardonable—yet tricky. Quick to betray—but slow to warn. "B.O." hurts its victims—while they least suspect it.

Hotter weather—more "B.O."

Never be caught off guard. We become insensitive to ever-present odors, but we're always perspiring. Pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste daily. And the hotter it is, the more we offend.

For safety's sake, always bathe with Lifebuoy.

Favorite of millions. Mild, yet wonderfully invigorating. Lifebuoy's deep-reaching antiseptic lather purifies. Pores breathe again. You feel fresher—cleaner than ever before. No chance for "B.O." Country Needs Is Sent, Doctor Says

Bisch, M. D., Ph. D.

Importance to this most sterling of the emotions that we should. Too many have an idea that to give way to sentiment opens and frankly is to show weakness. In fact, there are persons who think that any display of emotion such as tears or pity means weakness. Yet it is undeniable truth that the strongest man is he who possesses all the finer emotions, and furthermore, is one who is not afraid to display them. We must respect sentiment if we would live a full, well-rounded life. We should bear sentiment toward our fathers and mothers, for literature, for art, for tradition, for patriotism, for religion, for each and every value that the world has revered for ages. It isn't so much that we Americans are devoid of sentiment. We actually possess it aplenty. But we do give a wrong impression because we hold sentiment in check. Don't be afraid to let your sentiment out. It is unwise to stifle it, for it helps to sweeten your own life as well as that of others. We need sentiment as a counterbalance to the harsh materialism manifest on every side. And as individuals we need it to help us bear our burdens better. Look for sentiment in others and recognize it, comment upon it, and even reward it if possible. This will help you to develop it and to express it in yourself. (Copyright, 1929.)

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

PRaise WHERE DUE.

SUMMER widows attention! (Likewise, of course, summer widows, to say nothing of the who console summer bachelors.) It has been ruled and set forth from the bench of the Supreme Court of New York, that a woman has a right to her own friends, even her own female friends, even friends not particularly congenial to his wife. Said Justice Peter Schmuck, in a recent decision: "Entertaining another than one's wife, even to the extent of escorting her to the theaters, is in itself no reason to cause public comment or indignation, much less warrant disturbance of the marriage for a married man is as criminal and marriage is not supposed nor expected to deprive him of his individuality to foreclose his right to choose his associates, to restrict his social activities to those acceptable to his wife." Here's one woman who says: "Three cheers for the Judge." All married persons, we believe, ought to have evenings off if they want them.

It always has seemed to us absurd and unfair that either a husband or a wife should elect to censor the other's friends or public social contacts. If a wife cannot trust her husband to take another woman to the theater, why did she marry him in the first place? Either she is hopelessly doubtful of her own attractions or she thinks him a Don Juan. (Few American husbands even advise the type—to say nothing of consulting it!)

"But," means some matron, "why should I stay home all alone while my husband is taking another woman to a show?" Why should you? Why DO you? Isn't there an old friend who likes to take you out? You are decidedly unlike most American women if your husband is the only man of your acquaintance. Why must the married perpetually go about by two and two, as the animals went into the ark? Why can't they occasionally take in their stride a single companion? If there are children, with whom one of the two should stay, let them take their evenings out in turn!

There are at least two good reasons for re-shuffling. In the first place, it seems to be a law that a wife doesn't "like to" her husband's friends, and that hers are him stiff. "What you can see in that shall little wife," she sniffs. "How can you stand that tame cat?" he retorts. If this is the state of affairs—and, alas, times out of ten, it is—would a man and a woman entertain a common, utterly ungenial to her, or why should she urge him to be hospitable to a man with whom he has nothing in common? Surely it's more sensible and peaceful to agree to disagree, and each entertain his or her special friends (of either sex) without dragging in an unwillingly polite partner as accessory.

The second reason for the occasional social association of husband and wife with outsiders is that, in a happy marriage, the brief separation emphasizes the pleasure of reunion. When a woman in love with her husband has lunch with Dick, she gives home with such a "Thank-God-I'm-not-married-to-Dick" feeling. When a man in love with his wife takes Marie to the theater, he leaves her with the grateful reflection that the woman he married doesn't have to squeal every time somebody on the stage says "Darling!"

Association between two happily married persons is so rich in shared memories, perceptions, jokes, intimate contact with any more friend, while having the momentary charm of change, is, by contrast, thin and swiftly satiating. Only when friends are due it exercises a dan-
—We truly believe that the normal reaction for a husband or wife who is, as a matter of course, permitted complete social freedom, is to come rushing back to the tolerant partner with the feeling, if not the open assertion, "Nobody is as much fun as you!" (Copyright, 1929.)

Celery Waste

A HOUSEWIFE complained that she had to throw away more than she used from a bunch of celery. She probably does not understand this vegetable well. In a good bunch of celery there is absolutely no waste. The outer stalks can be boiled, then creamed or served with a tomato sauce and some housewives prefer them just buttered. They are also good scalloped. Only the crisp inside stalks are served plain, and the leaves can be used for soups. The large stalks make good cream of celery soup. Celery is delicious when stuffed with cream or pimiento cheese. It is largely used in chicken and fish salads and forms a large part of fruit and vegetable salads. The roots are used in soups and as an addition to potato salad. So every part of a bunch of celery can be used in cooking. It keeps well in a cool, well-ventilated place so it is not liable to spoil before it can be all used up. A quart of milk a day, to be used for each child solely as a beverage, is not too much.

When SOCIETY FORGOT

Mabelle Gilman Corey in 1908.

CHAPTER FIVE

A YEAR after Mabelle Gilman had realized the second great ambition of her life by marrying William Ellis Corey, whose fortune was rated at more than $10,000,000, she admitted defeat in the battle for recognition by New York's "400" and she and her husband set out to conquer European society.

And this was where her charming Chateau Villegeais near Paris came in to great advantage. The chateau is a stately mansion built in the ornate style of Louis XV, and stands in a knoll in the center of a beautiful park of 23 acres. It was built in the seventeenth century and at one time was used by Jerome Bonaparte, King of Westphalia, and later by Emperor Napoleon III and the Empress Eugenie.

Experts have declared it to be the most magnificent estate within a radius of 50 miles of Paris. A high wall surrounds the park and from the iron gates in the wall an avenue half a mile long and shaded by trees celebrated for their splendid growth extends to the chateau. Very old ivy grown trees make up the park around the house. There are groves with Greek statues and old bronzes, spacious meadows, lakes and fish ponds, her houses and a winter garden filled with perennial shrubs, and many smooth roads.

The chateau is furnished with costly furniture of various periods, oriental furnishings, rare rugs, mosaics, many paintings by old and new masters, and other valuable objects of art. The estate, which Mrs. Corey bought before her wedding for $100,000, is now said to be worth well over $1,000,000, and although she has since divorced her husband, she still lives there.

AFTER having tried in vain to break down the barriers of convention and prejudice which made their stay in New York a failure during their first winter, Corey and his wife returned to Paris in the spring of 1908 and launched their campaign to win their way into Europe's smart set. And now Corey again showed the diplomacy and tact that had helped him in his career, and instead of attempting to entertain reluctant aristocrats at their chateau, he presented his wife at the Labouille Golf Club, near Versailles, one of the meeting places of the best known people in Paris.

On their first visit, they arrived in a big motor car just before luncheon when the clubhouse was crowded. And the steel masterly beautiful young wife, demurely dressed in gray, proved a great attraction, as her husband had expected. Several prominent friends of Corey immediately came up and asked to be introduced to his wife, but many others with whom he had been friendly, hung back, undecided what to do. But when Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, cousin of the Czar, asked for the honor of meeting the beautiful American woman, those who had hesitated, particularly the Americans, thought better of it, and her very first appearance in this exclusive cosmopolitan society became a triumph for her.

Mrs. Corey was in no way disconcerted by the open admiration of the titled golfers, but remained cool and gracious, and when by a lucky chance she was drawn to play with the Grand Duke in a mixed foursome on the next Ladies' day, she smiled modestly. Corey, however, showed a very evident pride and pleasure at the success of his wife's debut.

AFTER this auspicious beginning, Mrs. Corey became one of the big successes of the Paris summer social season. Whereas during the winter before, she had been compelled, by reason of her lonely life in the big mansion on Fifth Avenue, to occupy her time with music and reading and visits to the theater, she now was in such great demand that she and her husband had scarcely a minute to themselves.

Shortly after her introduction to the smartest set in Paris, she and her husband gave a reception at the Hotel Ritz in honor of the Duke of Sparta, Crown Prince of Greece. The reception was followed by dinner in the garden of the fashionable hotel, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants. Among those present were Prince Hohenlohe, the Duke and Duchess de Morny, Marquis de Turenne, Comte Talleyrand-Perigord, Comte Louis Perigord, Comtesse Hocquart de Turco, Lady Robert Peel, and many others whose names are prominent in the Almanach de Gotha.

Fresh from triumphs such as these, the Coreys returned to New York in the fall only to find the tongues of scandal wagging again. The cause of this new unpleasant episode was Charles Henry Gilman, Mrs. Corey's father, who announced he would sue his son-in-law for $250,000 damages for alienation of his daughter's affections. Gilman asserted that soon after his daughter returned from her honeymoon, he had journeyed all the way across the continent from San Francisco to take her in his arms.

When he arrived at the Fifth avenue mansion, he claimed, he was received by Corey who refused to permit him to see his daughter. Gilman also stated that Corey had made her promise before he married her that she would deny relationship to him, her father. Corey's animosity toward Gilman, it was understood, was the result of some letters which the father gave to the newspapers just before the wedding, and which she was supposed to have written to him from Pittsburgh after her first encounter with Corey at the famous "swimming party."

In one of these letters, Gilman claimed, she wrote to him: "Dear Pop, I may surprise you all by marrying a very rich man." But, although Gilman's damage suit against Corey never materialized, this new publicity succeeded in marring any prospects the steel magnate and his wife might have had of making progress in their

one of which I am fortunate to possess, have been restored with great and consummate art, so I believe the spirit of their times can breathe again."

"And do you contemplate any such things in America?" she was asked. "No, because I could not get the background for what I contemplate in our country. We haven't the marvels of art and antiquity, combined with the natural glories of the chateau country. The spirit is not here; the elusive call in the very atmosphere is lacking. We can do wonderful things, beautiful things, but for great fetes, ballets, out-of-door entertainments, no country can give what France can give."

"Hence, whatever I plan to do in an artistic way will be at my chateau. The setting is there, and I can almost see in my imagination the entertainments Mme. Pompadour would give were she living now."

"The reason we have no beautiful women, such as the Pompadours, Recamiers, Maintenons, is because society is not based upon the same broad principles that obtained then. Instead of the bickering little groups scattered about in various social centers, each trying to build herself on the torn-down frame of another, the great women of France were recognized for their worth, and society meant to them a duty, an art as serious as that of statesmanship to her men."

ON HER return to Paris after this visit, Mrs. Corey gave an entertainment which not only was declared to have been a fete that was livelier and more picturesque than any conceived in the days of the Grand Monarch, but which even aspired to rival the feasts of Lucullus, mountains of ice being raised on the grounds of the chateau to temper the sultry summer night.

Corey himself had helped to plan this marvelous affair, and three Grand Dukes were present—the Duke of Sparta, Grand Duke Boris of Russia, first cousin of the Czar, and Grand Duke George of Leuchtenberg. The beautiful park was brilliantly illuminated with colored lanterns massed in artistic array and a constant bombardment of novel fireworks in odd arrangements lent an element of surprise to the memorable night.

After a dinner at which there were 50 guests, 200 more persons—June day in New York. "And if God blesses her with children—His little ones—the pity of it is that this essentially false creature, a well-dressed libel on her sex, very carefully teaches her little ones to be as false, if possible, as herself. She makes them little snobs, and my definition of a snob is an overconscious person with a 365-day A. M. and P. M. memory who is always unkind."

Needless to say, such outspoken words of criticism of the set that, socially, could not "see" her, failed to add to her success on this side of the Atlantic. (To Be Concluded Tomorrow.)

Meditations OF A Married Woman

By Helen Rowland

NOT AU REVOIR.

Breaking off a love affair would be a far less painful thing if a man ever knew HOW to say good-by, gracefully, and a woman ever knew WHEN to say it.

But there is a lot more truth than humor in the old joke about a woman's long-drawn-out "good-bys."

When it comes to the parting of the ways, after love, or even after a mild flirtation, the Clinging Vine develops an awful clutch.

A woman's first thought, after a quarrel, is "How can I get him back?"—a man's is "How can I get away?"

All her good-bys are au revoir! And her "farewell appearances" are, as many and as certain as were the famous Patti's.

Somewhat, a woman cannot accept finality. She cannot believe that anything so beautiful and vital as love can possibly die. She keeps on going back and trying to dig it up and perform an autopsy on it, or to bring it back to life as a pulmotor. She just can't let it ALONE.

She will tell a man "good-by, forever," tonight—and tomorrow morning she will call him up, before breakfast, to tell him that he forgot his umbrella. Or to find out if he's coming up to dinner. Or just to see if he's heartbroken about it. Or to tell him "good-by, forever," all over again.

She hangs onto a parting like a bulldog to an old shoe. And that is where she makes her fatal mistake.

If love is dead, it cannot be revived. But many a dying love would come back to life if a woman would only say GOOD-BY—not at a revival—the psychological moment. And then stick TO IT!

Don't wait for love to die. When that tired look begins to creep into a man's eyes, and that bored note into his voice, go "out of his life, forever"—and stay out.

A love affair that has been broken off may be reanimated. But once love has been asphyxiated, burnt out or smothered, there is nothing to do but order the lilies, wipe your eyes and forget it.

A man's love, like an orchid, is apt to wilt in too warm an atmosphere, and nothing will revive it and bring back its freshness so quickly as putting it on ice for a little while.

Nothing so lowers a woman's stock in a man's eyes as her weakness in "calling him back" after she has given him his conge. Nothing so bores him as to be "forgiven" when all he wanted was to be forgotten.

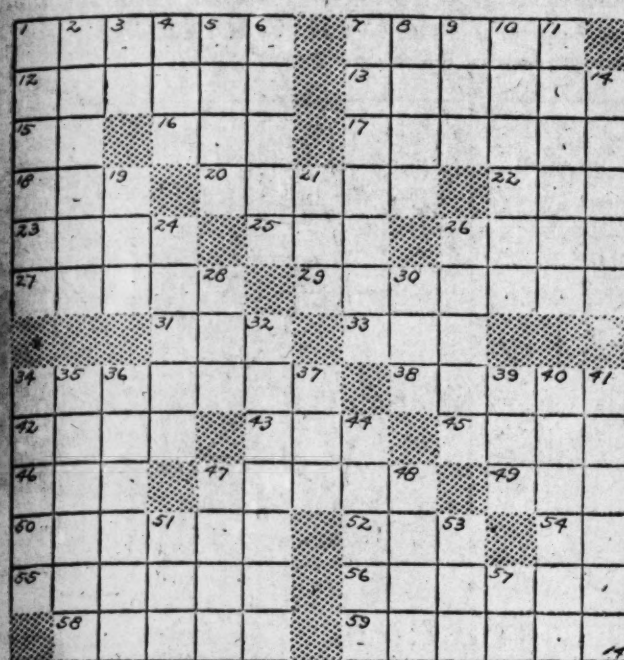

Don't say "good-by" unless you mean it. And then say GOOD-BY—not an au revoir! Write "Fini" at the end with a steady hand—and don't add any postscripts! (Copyright, 1929.)

Market Encounters Rather Heavy Profit-Taking in Many Sections of the List — Call Money 9 Per Cent.

AMERICAN T. & T. AT A NEW HIGH

A Number of Utilities Bid Up to New Peaks—U. S. Steel Closes on a Lower Price Basis.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The stock market worked irregularly higher today, although it encountered rather heavy profit taking in many sections of the list, inspired by firmness of call money at 9 per cent and a tendency on the part of traders to exercise caution on the theory that the market may be headed for a corrective reaction after its sustained rise of recent weeks.

There was some calling of loans and it was feared for a time that call money might go to 10 per cent, but it was reported later that large banks were acting to keep the rate from going higher. Bankers are still looking for better credit conditions within a few days and the fact that time money still held at 7 1/2 per cent was viewed favorably.

Features in Day's News. Features of the day's news were the statistics on June and the first six months' production of steel and automobiles, both of which set new records for the half year. The automobile figures, however, were viewed less favorably than the steel, as the two leading small car manufacturers accounted for 55 per cent of the output. The announcement that John Willits had sold his interest in Villia Overland and been rumored for some time. Food shares, particularly those of companies whose business is accelerated by hot weather, were bull favorites of the session. Borden's National Dairy Products, Canada Dry and Coca Cola rising 3 or 4 points to new high ground.

New High on A. T. & T. American Telephone was a strong feature, rising 7 points to a record price of 241. A few of the utilities were again bid up in lively fashion on the theory that the technical position of this group had been strengthened by recent profit-taking. People's Gas was sent up 20 points and Philadelphia Co. 16 to new peaks. Consolidated Gas and Standard Gas and Electric were well bought.

American Can, Continental Baking and General Motors. Bethlehem Steel was well bought, mounting about 2 points, but United States Steel, after duplicating its previous high at 20 1/2, fell back to 19 1/2, and closed only a point above that level, off more than 2 points net. Cutler Hammer, Burns Bros., Columbian, Carbon, Lackawanna, General Railway Signal, Montgomery Ward, Ward Baking preferred and Midland Steel Products preferred were bid up from 6 to 11 points.

General Motors Down. Pero Marquette, which jumped 15 points yesterday, however, fell back 10. Case Threshing and Auburn Auto, which have recently moved upward in violent manner, fell about 9 points each, and Cluett Peabody dropped 6 to a new low at 56. Such important issues as General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, Radio and du Pont fell 2 or 3 points.

In the commodity markets, wheat received a setback, wheat dropping 2 1/2 cents. Corn lost a cent and more. Cotton, however, was firm. Foreign exchanges were firm, with sterling cables quoted well above the incoming gold point at 48 1/2. The Japanese yen, however, dropped about 1/4 of a cent. Steel common had to absorb a good deal of renewed realizing during the day. This selling was influenced primarily by the proximity of its monthly report on unfilled orders due at noon tomorrow. Preliminary estimates do not indicate much change as likely to be shown at the end of June, with chances favoring a slight increase.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on Pages 27, 28 and 29.
